

'Stop McAdoo' The Watchword

One Thing on Which All Supporters of Lesser Candidates are Agreed. Even Though They Agree on Nothing Else.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, June 20.—"Stop McAdoo."

With this as their rallying point, the big and little "bosses" of a dozen states inaugurated a series of before-the-battle conferences today that promise to result in an iron-bound organization, sufficiently tight and sufficiently trustworthy to prevent the leading candidate in the Democratic convention from attaining the 732 votes or two-thirds, necessary to nominate a presidential candidate.

"Stop McAdoo."

It rolled up and down the corridors of the Waldorf, propelled by the supporters of every other candidate in the list—the Smith forces, the Underwood managers, the Davis boomers, the Ralston men, and the adherents of Robinson, Cox, the Bryans, Walsh and horses of a hue so dark their forms are hardly yet discernible to the naked eye.

Two blocks away on the eighteenth floor of the Vanderbilt Hotel, the McAdoo managers sit in a sort of endless conference figuring on ways and means of beating the combination. They are confident—and yet they are worried. They believe the McAdoo delegates will stick—and yet they are not sure of it.

The two hotels represent the two rival camps into which this Democratic national convention that opens next Tuesday in the Garden, has been divided.

McAdoo is at the Vanderbilt, where he occupies an entire floor. He is alone in this famous hotel.

The quarters of other candidates are at the Waldorf. It is significant, and at the same time indicative of the manner in which his enemies have literally been driven into each other's arms for self protection.

At the Waldorf there is continual coming and going of anti-McAdoo leaders—George E. Brennan, the governor of Illinois, the nearest contender to McAdoo from the standpoint of delegate strength, C. C. Carlin, who directs the Underwood candidacy; George White and Ed Moore, the Ohio man, who trailed with Cox four years ago; Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, Frank Hague, mayor of Jersey City, who is backing Siler; the lieutenants of Tom Taggart of Indiana, who are backing Ralston; the Davis people, the Ritchie people, all of them.

A conference attended by many of these men was held last night. Others will be held continuously between now and nominating time next Thursday or Friday.

At the Waldorf, it was said today McAdoo is already "stopped." Sumcient votes have been pledged, it was said, to absolutely prevent a nominating total for McAdoo unless the two-thirds rule is abolished, and that is believed a little chance of that. Four hundred votes, at least, have been tagged and put in the McAdoo column. It was said, and the anti-McAdoo leaders were confident today of a swelling total as convention time approaches.

Heavy chuckles, almost raucous laughter, came from the Waldorf. Meanwhile, with the McAdoo and Smith-Underwood camps busily engaged in sharpening their respective knives, the candidacy of John W. Davis of West Virginia is admittedly growing stronger as convention time approaches.

The letter which the ex-ambassador caused to be published today, stating in effect that he is a receptive if not avowed candidate for the nomination, caused a stir in political circles here and gave his friends a new talking point.

Davis's availability is more and more discussed by those who believe that McAdoo and Smith are already hopelessly deadlocked—a week before the balloting begins. Not being an active candidate, and taking no part in the bitter quarrelling that already is going on between the Vanderbilt and the Waldorf, Davis, his friends say, has only to maintain himself in this position in order to make himself acceptable to all factions once a stalemate is reached.

The name of Senator Ralston of Indiana may not be formally placed before the convention when the time comes for nominating speeches. This does not mean, however, that his candidacy has lost any of its potentialities or that it has appreciably weakened. Taggart is reported to have decided against a formal nomination, and even against Indiana's casting her thirty votes for Ralston on the first ballot. It is better strategy, some Hoosiers believe, not to let the monotony of thirty votes for Ralston become irritable to the delegates' ears, but rather to start it later when it may serve as a spur to jaded and tired minds.

McAdoo's managers positively refuse to discuss second choices, even though their rivals do.

Canadian Postal Strike Chaotic

By Telegram to The Freeman. Ottawa, Ont., June 20.—Mail service was badly disorganized in various parts of Canada today as a result of the attempt to bring about a nation-wide postal strike.

Toronto is the storm center. Leaders in the strike movement there are using all possible pressure to make the strike general.

Most of the postal employees in Montreal are out and large quantities of mail matter are accumulating there and similar conditions prevail in the central and western parts of Ontario.

Considerable confusion exists in the ranks of the postal workers owing to the absence of definite orders from the leaders. In the absence of such orders many employees, who had quit returned to work today. It was reported that practically all the men on the Pacific coast had returned to their posts, meanwhile awaiting further instructions from the strike leaders.

An effort is being made by the government to fill the places of many of the strikers.

Yale Freshmen Defeat Harvard

By Telegram to The Freeman. New London, Conn., June 20.—Yale's freshman crew, rowing a swift, steady stroke, thrashed down the two mile course on the historic Thames this morning to victory over Harvard in the first event of the annual Yale-Harvard regatta.

The main event, the 'varsity four mile race, will not be decided until late this afternoon.

Yale's freshman crew flashed across the finish line two and one half lengths ahead.

The blue crew got away to a lead and held it for the first mile. Then, Harvard crew overtook them and for a quarter of a mile they rowed neck and neck.

But Yale had the reserve strength and easily pulled away from Harvard in the final sprint.

The freshman race was rowed under almost ideal conditions. The early morning clouds which had conveyed the hint of rain, had disappeared and the sun shone forth resplendently.

The rival crews, their sturdy, bronzed bodies moving in perfect rhythm, slashed down a two mile lane, upon each side of which were anchored long rows of gayly decorated craft of all kinds, from a rowboat to a steam yacht.

On each side of the river thousands of spectators were gathered in groups of from half a dozen persons to half a hundred.

Charming co-eds in vivid hues, sunny attire, accentuated the gala tinge to the regatta. Colored parasols and the blue of Yale and Crimson of Harvard were rowed energetically as the young oarsmen shot down the river.

A long observation train with circus seats and awning tops on each car and carrying hundreds of spectators, following the competing crews on a specially built railroad track running parallel to the course.

The victory of the Yale in the first event was the signal for the shooting off of bombs and the shrieking of sirens on the river craft.

Yale's official time was ten minutes 22 seconds; Harvard's, ten minutes 45 seconds.

Yale also captured the junior varsity race, winning by a length. It was a great race, closely contested from the start. Harvard took a slight lead at the start, then Yale closed in, and, for almost a mile they rowed neck and neck.

Yale then rowed half a length ahead and at the 1 1/2 mile mark this short distance separated the competing crews. As they came in to the finish, the Harvard following shrieked "come on Harvard." But the boys pulling the Crimson tipped oars did not have sufficient strength to pull out to the lead.

Yale's boat leaped across the finish line exactly a length ahead. The Harvard crew was almost exhausted by their desperate effort to win while Yale was rowing easily at the finish.

while Glass called on McAdoo and McAdoo returned the call, the Virginia senator did not call elsewhere, nor was he called on by others.

The anti-McAdoo forces contend that McAdoo can "deliver" but few of his delegates.

"He has more delegates than anyone else right now. That is conceded," said one of the leaders. "But he can't control them to the point of delivery. He knows it and we know it."

The Waldorf began clattering up today with vice presidential booms, and more arrived during the day. In addition to virtually every presidential candidate also being a vice-presidential possibility, there are numerous others who aim lower and are admittedly shooting at nothing else but second place.

Governor Smith was asked whether he would accept such a post.

"I am not a vice presidential candidate," he said. "It has never been considered."

Major George L. Berry of Tennessee, head of the Pressmen's Union, and Colonel A. O. Owsley of Texas, former commander of the American Legion, are two of the outstanding alms at second place. Berry has a considerable delegate strength, picked here and there. Owsley contends that a veteran on the ticket will be necessary to offset the Davis candidacy on the Republican ticket.

League Finances In Good Shape

Current Assets More Than Double Current Liabilities Says Report of Treasurer Chester Young at Annual Meeting in Utica.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Utica, N. Y., June 20.—The Dairy-men's League Cooperative Association, Inc., made marked gains during its last fiscal year, the third year of the pooling plan, and is in a stronger position financially than ever.

These facts, encouraging to organized dairymen, were placed on the record amid much enthusiasm at the fifth annual meeting of the association, an all-day session, in the State Armory, this city, today.

The association's accomplishments were brought about despite the general agricultural depression and the low level of milk prices.

C. W. Slocum, of Milton, Pa., president of the association, said of the year's achievements: "I challenge any cooperative association in the country to show a better record."

Delegates at the meeting represented 877 locals with a total membership of 66,443. In the great audience were representatives from many banks in New York city and up-state cities and towns. Agricultural leaders and dairy farmers and their wives from all parts of league territory were among the visitors.

That great progress is being made by this farmers' cooperative marketing association is shown by these outstanding facts taken from the annual reports for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1924:

Average gross pool price per 100 pounds for all Grade B milk at the base zone, testing 3 per cent butterfat, 20 cents higher than the average for the preceding year.

Average net pool price, including certificates of indebtedness, an increase of 18 cents.

Average cash distribution, an increase of 23 1/2 cents.

Average deductions from milk checks for certificates of indebtedness, a decrease of $0.0413.

Administrative charges, a decrease of $0.079 per 100 pounds.

That the organized farmers are in "this business" is borne out by the fact that the association's gross sales of all products for the fiscal year amounted to $75,132,468.64. The total milk handled aggregated 2,955,000,000 pounds.

The strength of the association is shown by the following from the annual report of Treasurer Chester Young: "Cash in bank, $3,057,375.84; plants and equipment after charging off depreciation and mortgages, $5,872,690.83; other assets, $8,994,057.22. The current assets are more than double the current liabilities. The excess of the current assets over current liabilities are sufficient to pay 52 per cent of all of the outstanding certificates of indebtedness without considering the real estate values which have been more than conservatively depreciated."

At the present time the association has 185 plants of which 156 are farmer owned and 29 are leased.

The big audience made a striking picture in the flag bedecked auditorium as President Slocum from a platform decorated with wild flowers and spring foliage called the meeting to order at 10 o'clock.

After routine business, F. H. Thomson of Holland Patent, N. Y., chairman of the board of directors, reported the election of directors on May 24 as follows:

G. W. Slocum, Milton, Pa., Dist. No. 24; Chester Young, Napanoch, N. Y., Dist. No. 5; Fred H. Sexauer, Auburn, N. Y., Dist. No. 12; H. J. Kershaw, Sherburne, N. Y., Dist. No. 13; John Rosenberg, Buffalo, N. Y., Dist. No. 16; Herbert L. Seeley, Academy Corners, Pa., Dist. No. 20; Paul Smith, Newark Valley, N. Y., Dist. No. 21; Henry Burden, Cazenovia, N. Y., Dist. No. 11. Seven were re-elected. Henry Burden, president of the Cazenovia National Bank, Cazenovia, N. Y., is the only new member on the board.

The old board of directors met Wednesday at the Hotel Onondaga, Syracuse, and adjourned sine die. The new board of directors will organize for the year 1924-1925 at the Hotel Utica, Utica, today and will elect officers, including a secretary, which position has been vacant since the death last February of Albert Mannin. It will also elect four executive committee members, who, with the president, will act for the year as board of governors.

Immediately preceding the noon recess, the big crowd listened to an address by John A. McSparran, Master of the Pennsylvania State Grange.

At the afternoon session, Dr. George F. Warren of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Farm Management, New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, explained in detail the course in cooperative marketing at Cornell, for which the State Legislature at its last session appropriated $45,000.

The principal address of the afternoon was made by John D. Miller, vice president and general counsel of the association.

President Slocum, in his annual report at the morning session said in part:

"We have just passed our third anniversary as a commercial organization. In a short period of three years great progress has been made, and I am sure that this report will prove to you that the year just passed has been the banner year."

We have acquired many new markets and have expanded our business generally. We have brought about higher efficiency in our business management. Further than this, we have shown that the pooling plan is a success.

THREE LUTHERAN BODIES ARE PLANNING TO MERGE

Merger of New York Ministerium, New York Synod and New York and New England Synod Most Important Matter Considered at Ministerium Session Here—Session Closed Thursday Evening.

A merger involving millions of dollars' worth of property and the closer knitting together of the bonds between Lutheran congregations in the eastern section of the United States, came up for discussion at the 138th session of the ministerium of the state of New York and adjacent states at Trinity Lutheran Church on Spring street on Thursday.

The proposition considered at Thursday's session was the merger of the ministerium with the New York Synod and the New York and New England Synod, forming a single organization of four hundred or more Lutheran congregations in New York state, the New England states and New Jersey.

The ministerium is the oldest Lutheran organization in this country, having been founded in 1786. The New York Synod and the New York and New England Synod have decided to merge and the ministerium Thursday went on record as desiring to merge also and appointed the commission already in existence on the merger to draft a tentative constitution to present at the next ministerium session to be held in June, 1925.

The Laymen's Association of the ministerium also met Thursday and went on record as recommending the proposed merger.

The merger of the three organizations will involve millions of dollars' worth of church property, institutions and hospitals, and is one of the biggest questions before the Lutheran Church in the east today.

Thursday evening devotional services were held in the church with addresses on the Brotherhood and the Women's Missionary Society.

The ministerium closed its annual session Thursday evening.

Stormy Time in French Chamber

Socialist and Communist Deputies Fight While Conservatives Cheer—Vote of Confidence in New Premier.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Paris, June 20.—After a stormy session, during which members clashed upon the floor, the chamber of deputies gave the new Herriot cabinet a vote of confidence early today. The vote stood:

For the government, 313. Against the government, 234.

This was the new ministry's first test of strength in the chamber since it was formed by Edouard Herriot, a radical Socialist. Herriot sought the vote to make sure he had the support of the chamber when he goes to London tomorrow to confer with Premier Ramsay MacDonald upon reparations and the Ruhr issues.

There were exciting scenes when Socialist and Communist deputies came to blows. While the fighting was in progress, Right bloc deputies remained in their seats cheering the fighters.

President Painleve was compelled to suspend the session temporarily while the sergeants at arms separated the combatants and restored order.

Excelsior Hose Pleased Hudson

Excelsior Hose Company, No. 4, returned from Hudson Thursday night, well pleased with the reception accorded the company by the people of Hudson. They, with the Salvation Army College Band, were a feature of the parade in connection with the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association convention. During the afternoon the Excelsior Hose Company marched to the Soldiers' Memorial monument and placed a large wreath at its base. The Salvation Army College Band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and Captain Miller of the Kingston Salvation Army headquarters made a prayer while a large crowd of people listened reverently with bared heads.

CATSKILL TELEGRAPH OPERATOR DISAPPEARS

Lyle Von Arx, 28, Postal Telegraph operator at Catskill, has been missing since June 7, when he left Catskill after informing his friends that he was going to his home at Harvard, N. Y., for the week end. He left the train at Cornwall it is reported by railroad men who remember him on account of his wooden right arm and leg. Since that time his movements are unknown. No doubt in his accounts has been found by his Postal company in checking up his reports. William J. Porter, Jr., formerly in charge of the Catskill office has been again put in charge of the company. Von Arx it is said disappeared under similar circumstances while working for the Postal Telegraph Company at Malone several years ago.

1,000 Saved by Good Officers

Thrilling Experience of Those on Board Canadian Pacific Liner Which Was Beached Just in Time to Avoid Loss of Life.

By Telegram to The Freeman. St. John's, N. F., June 20.—Out of the fog shrouded North Atlantic came a story today of how presence of mind and devotion to duty saved probably 1,000 lives when the Canadian Pacific liner Metagama was nearly cut in two in collision with the Italian steamship Clara Campus in a thick curtain of mist seven miles off Cape Race.

Both vessels, the Metagama carrying 1,000 passengers, were creeping through the fog Wednesday night when the Italian ship struck the Canadian liner amidships, tearing a gigantic hole in her hull.

So serious was the accident that the officers of the Canadian liner feared she could not make shore and began immediately to send out "S. O. S." calls. Other vessels turned toward their course, but owing to the thick weather had difficulty in locating the scene of the accident.

The Metagama began a thrilling race for safety. While the hold filled with water the vessel was turned toward shore, but could only creep, owing to the thick fog and the severe list to starboard. The pumps were kept working at the highest pressure while officers went among the passengers assuring them that they were safe.

Throughout the entire night, amidst darkness intensified by an almost impenetrable mist, the vessel crept toward land. It appeared to be a losing fight for the water-creeping liner until, after a 24 hour battle, the Metagama made port and was beached. Officers said she was saved "by a few yards" as the water in the hull had nearly reached the limit of destroying the ship's buoyancy.

Despite the danger to themselves and their charges, the officers did not neglect the Italian ship. They sent three sailors from the Metagama to find out how badly the Clara Campus had been damaged. They got lost in the fog and failed to reach the Italian vessel, nor could they find their way back to the Metagama, and their fate is unknown.

The Clara Campus reached port shortly after the Metagama with her bows badly crumpled.

While the Canadian ship was creeping toward port the Red Cross liner Rosinad, attracted by the wireless calls, came up and conveyed her part of the way.

THE COMMUNIST TICKET IS NAMED

By Telegram to The Freeman. St. Paul, Minn., June 20.—"Control of the government by farmers and workers" was the campaign cry flung to the nation today by the new third party which was formed here under the control and guiding genius of Communists.

"We are going into the campaign following the dictates of our platform calling for nationalization of industry and control of the government by the farmers and the toilers," Duncan McDonald of Springfield, Ill., the party's presidential nominee, told International News Service.

McDonald's announcement, that the party would press a vigorous drive to capture votes "of the exploited farmers and workers" which was supported by William Bouck of Washington state, who was unanimously chosen as vice presidential candidate. He was nominated as "Comrade" Bouck.

McDonald's hopeful prediction for the new party was not shared by the chiefs of the farmer labor delegates to the convention, who walked out of the hall, charging domination of the party by Communists.

More than two score delegates bolted the convention when McDonald, backed by the "Communist" leader, William Z. Foster, C. E. Ruthenberg and C. B. Manley, all of Chicago, was nominated.

Perhaps no man has been nominated for the high office of the presidency amid such unusual setting as McDonald. With Senator La Follette, Republican of Wisconsin, last Sunday, June 15, and which is tracked by the Communists over the protests of Farmer Labor groups there was a wild demonstration on the floor when McDonald's name was proposed. He was hoisted to the shoulders of admiring friends and carried to the stage, where he waited while the formality of an acclamation vote was gone through.

Down before him McDonald saw countless, collarless perspiring delegates madly cheering his name. He, too, ripped off his coat and threw the convention into an uproar and he lambasted the "capitalist" in his speech of acceptance.

"I shall never cease until the banner of capitalism is hauled down," he said. "They call us Reds. Why have you never heard a working man ask for anything that he shouldn't have. They don't ask for too much."

But a flickering hope remained today in the hearts of the few farmer labor delegates who stuck out at the convention. They wanted "Bob" La Follette but they virtually had to abandon all hope when Foster, who manipulated the "Communist" maneuvering from start to finishing, announced: "We will never stand for La Follette unless he agrees to our platform and agrees to take charge of our campaign."

There was unanimity of opinion among the delegates remaining in town that La Follette would never consent to have anything to do with this party which asked for votes upon a platform that actually was written under the personal dictation of Manley, Foster's son-in-law.

Holding this view many of the delegates who bolted planned to go to Cleveland for the "big four brotherhood" convention July 1, when it was believed here La Follette would be formally endorsed for the presidency. There was no question in the minds of Farmer Laborites that La Follette would accept the endorsement of that convention.

Pharmacists Convention.

The New York State Pharmaceutical Association at its forty-sixth annual convention, selected Niagara Falls as the place for holding its next annual convention. George R. Christ, of Brooklyn, was elected president. Walter B. Tongue, Poughkeepsie, was elected third vice president, and Harry G. Gregory, New Paltz, one of the executive committee.

Governor Smith Has Great Faith

Says He Believes He Will Be Nominated, Basing Belief on "General Developments" and Encouraging Reports.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, June 20.—For the first time Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York today made a definite claim on the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I believe I will be nominated," he told newspapermen. Asked on what he based his optimism, he said: "General developments. The reports are most encouraging."

Governor Smith said he had no second choice for president. It was answering that query that he made his own claim.

"Second place," he said, "I have no second choice. I believe I am going to be nominated."

"My idea is that after this convention pays its complimentary votes to favorite sons it is then going to settle down and figure out who can win this fight."

The governor was asked if he knew the McAdoo forces were claiming more than 500 votes. He said he did and added:

"There is no way to tell how many delegates anyone is going to get."

Friends of the governor, listening in on the interview, quickly spoke up. They said McAdoo managers were claiming a lot of states that wouldn't be there when the roll was called.

They conceded the former secretary of the treasury only those states that were definitely instructed at home to vote for him. A lot of the other delegates, they asserted would be found behind Smith. Among the states they declared McAdoo claimed, but didn't have, were Arizona and Louisiana—and a good many others.

The statement made by his opponents that he wasn't well enough known to be solid south was repeated to Governor Smith.

"If I am nominated it will be the 18th time I have run for public office," he said, "a few folks ought to know me."

The governor revealed that he had conferred last night with George Brennan, Illinois leader, and Wilbur Marsh of Iowa. He said they discussed "convention rules."

A final decision has not been reached on the person to nominate him at the convention, but Governor Smith said "It looks like Roosevelt," referring to Franklin D. Roosevelt, his campaign manager.

On the Volstead act, Governor Smith reiterated his previously expressed opinion. He said he would enforce it and every other law to the limit of his ability.

"Law enforcement, after all is said and done," he declared, "must come from the people's own representatives. You can get as much enforcement as the people are willing to pay for."

The governor was still worried today over the loss of his collie dog. He interrupted several conferences to go out and look at dogs that were brought to his headquarters by volunteer searchers.

WALLOONS FIRST AMONG SETTLERS

Refugees Landed on Manhattan in 1623 and Named Place "New Avesnes."

Washington, D. C.—To the question "What is a Walloon?" that arises from the issuance by the United States of a special Huguenot-Walloon-New Netherlands Tercentenary postage stamp and coin and the holding of New York's New Netherlands celebration, one answer might be "half a Belgian," according to a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The name 'Walloon,'" says the bulletin, "is little known on this side of the Atlantic, even less so than 'Fleming,' because both have been merged in the national name, 'Belgian.' It is a fact, however, that instead of the Belgians having racial unity they consist of two peoples approximately equally divided, speaking languages differing almost as widely as Swedish and Spanish. But though racially and linguistically the Belgians make up a sort of a house divided against itself, politically and religiously they constitute as staunch a national entity as does French-German-Italian-speaking Switzerland; and they have stood together through the centuries under various rulers.

Speak French Language.

"The Walloons may be said to form the French-speaking half of Belgium for though a very few in out-of-the-way districts know only the French-like old Walloon language, modern French has replaced that speech for the vast majority of the Walloons. The other half of the Belgian partnership is made up by the Flemings whose speech, Flemish, differs very little from Dutch. The Catholic people of Flanders, however, have been divided from their kinsmen, the Protestant Dutch, by a religious gulf for hundreds of years, and prefer to cleave to their fellow religionists, the Walloons.

"An almost straight line can be traced on the surface of Belgium separating the Walloons from the Flemings. It runs from Aix-la-Chapelle, just inside the German border, westward to strike the French boundary a short distance southeast of Ypres.

"To this line the old Walloons—the Belzæe of Julius Caesar—were pressed by the southward-faring Teutons who took possession of and cultivated the plains and swamps of Northern Belgium. These immigrant Teutons, from whom the Flemish people sprang, did not penetrate the forest country, and there the Walloons remained entrenched. Save for isolated groves the forest has disappeared today, giving place to mines, factories, farms and gardens; but the Flemish-Walloon racial line is almost as sharply marked as it was fourteen hundred years ago.

"The Walloons, in their native land today are practically all Catholics; but there were religious differences among them in the Seventeenth century, and it was fugitive Protestant Walloons who played a prominent part in peopling America. While the Spanish were endeavoring to root out heresy in the Netherlands, hundreds of thousands of both Walloons and Flemings fled to the newly set up Protestant Dutch republic, just as some of the Pilgrim fathers fled there from England. It was Walloons from among these fugitives who, like the Pilgrims and French Huguenots, emigrated to America.

When New York was "New Avesnes"

"In the first ship sent to the present territory of the United States by the Dutch West India company, the New Netherlands, which landed in the Hudson river in 1623, Walloons led by Jesse de Forest were passengers. The eight families left on Manhattan, which was named 'New Avesnes' constituted the first settlement of that now famous and valuable island, and the first homesteaders, in fact, in the Middle States. The next and succeeding years brought more Dutch than Walloon immigrants, and though the latter played important parts in the new land they were eventually swallowed up in the Dutch and Huguenot communities just as New Avesnes was swallowed up by New Amsterdam.

"Since they came into existence from a merging of the old Gallic Belgæ and the Romans, the Walloons have given leaders to important historical movements. Charlemagne and Charles Martel may be considered among the original Walloons.

"As a people the Walloons have also been leaders. The revolution of 1830 which separated the Belgians from their temporary connection with Holland was led largely by the Walloons. The new Belgium, then set up, was begun as a French-speaking country. Recognition of the claims of the Flemings since, however, has brought about the passage of laws placing the two languages on an equal footing.

"Liege, one of the earliest Belgian towns to suffer from the German invasion during the World war, is the center of Wallonia or 'the Walloon country,' as the French-speaking portion of Belgium is termed."

BLACKBERRIES WILL GIVE GOOD RETURNS

(By DR. A. E. COLBY, Horticultural Department, Illinois College of Agriculture.)

Very few people really know how delicious a fruit the blackberry is, or realize the place it can fill in our mid-summer diet. They know blackberries only as the half-ripe, hard, sour, juiceless, partly red fruit commonly available on the market. The blackberry deteriorates very quickly after picking and will not stand to be shipped long distances. If it is to have the quality and flavor to which it is justly entitled it must be picked dead ripe and eaten at once. The place for the blackberry is in the home garden or in the commercial patch within easy trucking distance of a local market. There are many such places in Illinois unsupplied with quality fruit.

Blackberries yield better than other small fruits, a fair average yield over the country being 3,000 to 6,000 quarts an acre. Some of the best growers in Illinois, however, report a yield of only 2,400 quarts, with the average for the state far below this figure.

There seem to be three important limiting factors in raising blackberries in Illinois. One of these is the low price which sometimes prevails when there are competing crops of other fruits. Another is the disease and insect problem, and the third is the effect of dry weather.

As for the first difficulty, the proper selection of varieties with fruit well grown, properly ripened and presented attractively usually will result in good prices. There is big money in growing quality blackberries. Prices range from $4 to $6 a 24-quart crate.

The disease factor is a serious one in some sections. Crown gall, orange rust, anthracnose and leaf spot are common in neglected plantations and spread by infected nursery stock into new areas. Stock of such character should be rejected and infected plants in the plantation should be dug up and burned—not allowed to lie on the ground—at the first appearance of these diseases in the spring. Anthracnose and leaf spot can be controlled by spraying, as can also the few insects which occasionally work on the foliage.

The most important need in the successful plantation is in lessening the effects of dry weather, since the blackberry is largely water and ripens at the hottest season of the year. This trouble can be almost wholly avoided, first through proper selection of a site that does not suffer quickly from dry weather and second through practicing correct cultural methods.

The site should have a northern or northeastern exposure. The soil should be deep and mellow, and an especially important requisite is plenty of humus. Water drainage, either natural or artificial, also must be provided. Dead canes and the surplus plants must be pruned out and the laterals of those that remain headed in. Success or failure, however, depends finally upon the treatment of the soil. If manure or leguminous crops plowed under furnish part of the humus content of the soil, other fertilizers probably will not be needed until the plantation is in full bearing. Moisture conservation is an important need. Mulching with straw manure is practicable in small plantations. This mulch should be put on in the winter, not in the late spring.

Where cultivation is practiced it must be early, often and shallow and must not under any circumstances be neglected. It is the price of success. It has been said that quality varieties given quality care will result in quality fruit. This is especially true of blackberries.

Cultivate Young Orchard

A young orchard requires plenty of cultivation during its first summer in order to conserve moisture for the roots which lie rather close to the surface. The planting of a cover crop may be delayed until late August or September, in the case of young trees, for this reason. All trees which are weakened by early leaf-fall should receive generous application of nitrate of soda or manure next spring to bring them back to their normal, vigorous condition.

Horticultural Notes

An ideal time to plant is on a cloudy day when the air is moist.

It isn't so much the number of trees in the orchard that counts. It's what those trees produce.

The keynote to successful spraying is proper sanitation, and the time to begin the campaign is now.

It is a lamentable fact that when a farmer fails to raise fruit on his farm, his family is deprived of its benefits.

Buy what fruit trees you need from an established nurseryman who will guarantee the trees to be true to name and free from disease.

Orchardists are cautioned that while the lime-sulphur spray is foolproof during the winter when the trees are leafless, there are certain precautions that must be observed with the oils to prevent injury.

Give Your Wife This Message

If your wife says that washing dishes and clothes has made her hands look red and coarse and feel uncomfortably rough, remind her of these facts:

That such hands result from the use of an inferior household soap which irritates the skin. That she should select the kind of household soap she uses with as great care as she does her toilet soap.

It is this reasoning that has led thousands of the most intelligent housewives always to insist upon Kirkman's Soap for every household and laundry purpose.

And if your wife will insist upon Kirkman's she will get a soap as harmless to her hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap.

The reason is that Kirkman's Soap is free from lye to harm the skin or injure the most delicate fabrics. And the cleansing properties of Kirkman's Soap make it a quick and most thorough cleanser. You find that most of the "elbow-grease" is in the suds when you use it.

For the sake of your hands, insist upon Kirkman's.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 20, 1924.

When General Dawes heard of his nomination he refrained from "Hell and Maria" and consented himself with merely "Well, I declare." New dignity imposes restraints. Noblesse oblige.

Since their arrest for kidnapping and murder Leopold and Loeb are said to have received more than 400 love letters from young girls. The police ought to notify all of the parents, as some of them may have good sense and resolution enough to spank depravity out of their offspring.

We read that juniors and seniors in the University of California are rated by teachers and students as to character, address, appearance, leadership, disposition, popularity, speed in work, accuracy and attention to detail. Such a complete "sizing up" usually includes scholarship—to say nothing of the record in athletics.

APPENDICITIS "OUT OF STYLE."

Certain new bits of information imparted at the Chicago assembly of the American Medical Association are unusually interesting. One of the distinguished physicians stated that after a study of 2,295 students at the University of Minnesota he had been forced to the conclusion that the percentage of bashful boys is now twice that of girls. Whether bashfulness is an abnormally susceptible to medical treatment or not, common observation tends to confirm Dr. Morrison's estimate. Certainly the shy, retiring girl of former times seems to have practically disappeared and the modest boy lacking in the self-assurance of girls is now more noticeable. Among the causes, doubtless one of them is connected with the fact that this is distinctly an age of feminine self-assertion.

But perhaps the most important discovery announced before the Medical Association is a disease called "housewife's rib." It causes shooting pains in the side and until it was understood "many physicians mistook it for appendicitis, gall bladder infection, kidney trouble or some other serious ailment." Many patients "have been operated on for these diseases, especially appendicitis, when 'housewife's rib' was all that was wrong," according to Dr. Clinton, professor of surgery. "The cure consists in an operation to remove the tip of the floating rib." Dr. William J. Mayo, of the famous Mayo Brothers, discussed the evil effects of a chronically enlarged spleen, and according to the reporter of the proceedings, a spleen operation is now "the thing," operation for appendicitis being out of date and "quite passe." However that may be, the public has long suspected that there have been very many operations for appendicitis when something else was the matter.

THE NEW STEERAGE.

The old-time horrors of the passage to and from Europe in the steerage are now no more, and the steerage of old has been made over, for we are to judge from the glowing accounts of improved conditions announced by the Cunard liners and our own Leviathan. Of course, this is not a public benefaction on the part of the steamship companies. It is obviously a carefully considered effort to attract new business to take the place of the business lost by the steerage through our new immigration regulations, which have cut down and will continue to cut down immigrant travel. There would seem to be no good reason why the steerage on great liners could not be made tolerable by means of cleanliness, better food and better air, and only through such improvement can the new patronage now sought be secured.

If the accommodations are as satisfactory as the rates that have been announced, the new steerage will be a blessing to a host of Americans, artists of modest income, students and other tourists who need or desire the educational results and the pleasurable recreation of a sojourn in Europe, but can not afford first-class passage, the cost of which has been steadily mounting during years past. A "new steerage" to and from Europe, such as now announced, is highly desirable, and it is to be hoped that the steamship companies will find it reasonably profitable in order that it may be made permanent.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

YOUR SMALL PART IN THE MATTER.

You have been to see your physician and after examining you, he is frank enough to state that what you really need is a little exercise or work.

He suggests walking, golfing, gymnasium, or other exercise.

You perhaps think there is something in it, but after a trial, very brief trial as a rule, you think that a little medicine, a tonic of some kind might have really helped you more.

I have sometimes tried to restrain myself from thinking that if God had made you a less perfect machine or animal perhaps it would have been better for you.

What do I mean?

Well, take any of your internal organs. There is the stomach for instance.

You simply put some food and liquid in there, and immediately it starts business for you. Its walls made of muscle begin to churn up the food, so that its gastric juice (also being manufactured within its walls) can mix up well with it. This puts it in shape for the small intestine to manufacture from the food so prepared, the blood that builds up and keeps built up, all parts of your body.

And so with every organ in your body. The heart, lungs, digestive juices and kidneys, all of them, go right ahead about their work. And what supervision do you need to give them?

None whatever, because fortunately they are not under the control of your will. Just imagine what a busy time you'd have on your hands if you had to watch and see that all these organs did their work properly.

Now what am I trying to show? That when you just stop to consider all that is done for you inside that body of yours, and you have no worry or concern over it at all, doesn't it seem rather small, even ungrateful on your part, when you will not give the small amount of thought that is necessary to keep your body in perfect condition.

Because there are some things your body can't do for you.

It can't take on the food and water necessary. It needs your help also to get rid of some of the wastes. It can't regulate either your hours of rest or sleep.

But just think, all its asks you to do is to watch these three simple things.

To take into your system the proper amount and kind of food, to take five to ten minutes exercise a day to use up the wastes, and keep your muscular system in good condition, and to get enough rest to renew your worn out parts—and no more. So when your doctor suggests a few minutes outdoor exercise daily, don't think of the little bit of work that means, but think of all the other parts of your body that are working for you all the time without any worry.

PARIS DONS COLOR FOR SPRING WEAR

A few days' sunshine and a little really warm weather transforms Paris into a lovely blaze of color. For nearly a week the smart Parisienne has put aside her sober black attire and the lounge at the Ritz with the Pre Catelan, Chateau Madrid and Armentouville at lunch time have been bright with colored crepes de Chine, dainty flowered georgettes, printed mousselines and hats and sunshades in decorative effect.

When the Parisienne lets herself go in the matter of color she does it thoroughly. During the past few days such shades as yellow, tomato red, rose color, cornflower, blue, "pale bruise," apricot and a whole gamut of greens have been seen. Often they are in patterned materials, but plain ones are seen as well. Occasionally a plain wrap lined with the figured silk has accompanied the dress, but lately even this has been superfluous, so women have been contenting themselves with a scarf which harmonizes with the dress or else they have just planned a scarlet flower, rose camellia, carnation or geranium onto the left shoulder of the gown. The mode of the small flower finish is at its height; to appear without a posy is almost to be undressed. It is a pretty fashion, and one that is very suitable to the summer months, though it is so becoming and gives such a pretty finish to a toilette that women will probably carry it on into the coming autumn with furs.

Draped Frocks of Silk Reps.

At a recent lunch at the Pre Catelan Miss Mimi Brokaw wore a Paquin frock of that bright golden beige shade that is known here as "pale bruise," in a fine silk reps, made with a flat bow sewn down on the left side of the waistline and a few dartlike tucks set in toward the beltless back. The skirt was draped up at one side and the corsage was plain with a simulated opening half way down the back. A small straw hat of the same color was worn trimmed with one of the new Re-boux cockades.

A royal blue crepe de Chine dress was patterned all over with tiny bunches of flowers in yellows and reds. The tucked vest and a narrow turnover collar of white georgette were finished with a half inch cravat and bow of the crepe de Chine.

Pin Tucks, Vertical and Diagonal.
Mrs. Douglas Chapin had one of the tucked Vionnet dresses in light brick red crepe de Chine, made with the finest pin tucks by hand, some going horizontally round the gown, while others were on bands set downward. Her small Agnes hat was of black grosgrain with a tiny flat bow at one side.

Flower designs vied for popularity with Oriental paisleys and fine outline patterns. The plaids that were such a feature of the early part of the season are less prominent in real summer gowns, though they have not been entirely displaced.

The great simplicity of line in this summer's day dresses brings detail and accessories into greater prominence. Plain materials are decorated with trimmings of many buttons, sometimes these are small bone ones to match the dress, or they may be of crystal, or black and white or navy blue and white, according to the type and color of the gown they adorn.

Crepe de Chine With Shirting Stripes
Where a belt is worn it is an important part of the dress whether it be wide or narrow. The soft green suede belt that goes with Vionnet's black alpaca day dress is seen also with beige and white and on the simpler sportlike frocks. A red crepe de Chine frock was belted with a fine flange gold chain, an effective and clever use for this particularly superfluous article of jewelry. An inch wide suede belt that has just been launched has a border of the small gold indentations that used to edge four black silk purses, while its flat, oblong buckle is inlaid with fine gold lines. This is attractive in any color. Fine links of heavy braid similar to a soldier's lanyard are also used for belts in various colors on summer frocks.

Crepe de Chine with shirting stripes has a distinct place in country club fashions.

With the light colored summer frocks, the colored shoes are most often made in simple slipper fashion, and if decorated at all, carry only a small simple buckle.

KNIFE COULD BE LOST UNDER NAIL

Massachusetts Man Makes
One From Stem of Mother's Earring.

Boston.—A knife so small that it can be lost under the nail of the little finger has been made by Solomon Lorenzo Baxter, a watchmaker of Wellesey Village.

Formed from the stem of his mother's earring, the knife is only one-eighth of an inch long, and has seven parts, consisting of two handles, a back spring, three rivets and a blade. Mr. Baxter has fashioned it exactly like his own regulation-size penknife. The microscopic knife opens and shuts easily and its blade is sharp enough to cut.

Mr. Baxter, ever since he was a child, has had for his hobby the making of minute objects. His culminating achievement has been this microscopic knife which he has to carry around in a glass tube. The knife can be seen clinging to the sides of the bottle or on the cork.

In addition to this knife, Mr. Baxter has three others which he calls large knives, but which are only a quarter of an inch larger than the microscopic one. He carries them about in a small manilla bag. They are strung on a gold chain, one knife made of hard rubber with a shining blade of gold, and the other two mother-of-pearl, with silver blades.

Other Unique Knives.
The hobby that culminated with the fashioning of the smallest knife in the world, started with the construction of a minute knife made out of a coin for his mother. He followed this one with a knife shaped like a man's leg, the blade fitting into the part corresponding to the thigh. In his early days his only tools were a peg, an awl and a file, and with these he once made a padlock containing 22 rivets, out of six silver quarters of his mother's.

Many people have tried to take a picture of his knives, but they are all too small.

Mr. Baxter, who is almost seventy-one, has had a varied and interesting life. He was born in Burnham, Me., and early in his life went out West, where he says cowboys were "wild and woolly" enough. He had many fascinating tales to tell of those days. About the only thing that he brought back East with him was a gambler's lucky ring. It was a plain gold ring, and the gambler traded it to Baxter for a watch, but the luck did not last and Mr. Baxter finally got rid of it.

Has Other Hobbies.

Besides his interest in knives, Mr. Baxter has two other hobbies, clocks and firearms. He makes small banjo clocks, and has been known to finish one in a day. He has made about 12 of them, and no two are alike. His watches and knives have been shown to travelers from all over the world.

Among his treasures are antique wooden clocks, more than 150 years old. He likes to make over grandfather clocks and to work in wood, especially mahogany. One of his clocks is a French Willard clock that is very valuable.

Among his firearms is a pistol 250 years old, mounted with silver and gold, and an old fashioned flintlock gun with a pepper box; a gun with a knife attached, and a nameplate in a foreign tongue. One of his fowling pieces, made by a famous firm, has engraved on it a man, a dog, a fountain and roosters, and is very old and valuable. Another of his possessions is a dueling pistol, with the former owner's name on the back.

A cork pistol, used in frontier fighting against the Indians, was given by its owner and user, Doctor Newhall, to Mr. Baxter, a personal friend. An Indian gun, shaped much like a mid-iron used in golf, was given him by his wife's uncle, and it is very old and rare.—Boston Globe.

U. S. Annuls Citizenship Granted by Confederacy

New Orleans.—After residing in New Orleans virtually all his life, believing himself to be an American and exercising a citizen's suffrage, William D. Seymour has learned in Federal court that he is a British subject.

Seymour was born in Mexico of British parentage and his father was naturalized by the Confederacy during the Civil war.

The discovery that he was a British subject was made when Seymour attempted to obtain a passport to visit Europe. It was denied by the State department on the ground that he could not prove his American citizenship. At the same time it was held that rights granted by the Confederacy were not legal.

Songs of Nightingales Heard on English Radio

London.—Thousands of persons who had never listened to the notes of a nightingale heard the songs of these shy little birds broadcast from the depths of a Surrey wood late one night. These birds were tempted to sing at the right moment by notes sounded on a cello by a musician seated in the wood, it having been found that they respond to musical tones resembling those with which they habitually begin their songs. A sensitive microphone and amplifier were used to transmit the notes to the London broadcasting station.

GRANDFATHER PORKY

"Grunt, grunt," said Grandfather Porky as he strutted about the Pig Pen. "I don't like the way these other pigs are thinking they are as important as I am."

"Why, I'm the oldest settler in the Pig Pen. I'm the oldest inhabitant and I'm important and should be treated with respect."

"Grunt, grunt, these pigs don't treat me with respect at all."

"They don't half appreciate what an honor it is for them to have so splendid a pig at the head of the Pen."

"Just suppose they had any old kind of a head—they might have a creature who was cruel or hard with them or of a mean disposition."

"They might have some one who would really bring disgrace upon the Pen."

"They might have some one who would kill another animal or do something quite dreadful like that."

"But instead they have me, a splendid pig. It is a pity they don't appreciate me more."

"I must call them together and see what they have to say about it."

So Porky Pig called all the pigs to him. And they came, quite excited.

"Here I Am, Grandfather Porky."

"Squeal, squeal," said Miss Ham, "what is it you want, Porky?"

"Grunt, grunt," said Mrs. Pink-Pig. "did you want to speak to me?"

"Squeal, squeal," said Master Pink Pig. "you wanted to speak to me, did you not?"

"Grunt, grunt," said Pinky Pig. "what is all the excitement?"

"Yes, squeal, squeal, what is it?" asked Pinky Pig's mother and Mrs. Pinky Pig said:

"Here I come too, squeal, squeal." "Here am I," said Sir Percival Pork. "And here am I, grunt, grunt," said Sir Benjamin Bacon.

"We've all come," said Sammy Sausage.

"I'm here, too, grunt, grunt," said Brother Bacon.

And along hurried little Black Squealer, saying:

"Squeal, squeal, squeal, here I am, Grandfather Porky."

"Pigs," said Grandfather Porky, "gather around me."

They did as he suggested, twisting their little tails as they did so.

"I've wanted you all to come to hear me say a few words to you."

"A few, grunting, squealing words I would say to you."

"Pigs, you have a great ancestor. That great ancestor is none other than myself. An ancestor, you know, Pigs, is a grandfather or some relative who comes ahead of you."

"Pigs, you have a great leader. That great leader is none other than myself."

He grunted a little and then said: "Pigs, squeal, squeal, you have a most honorable Pig citizen in your midst."

"That honorable Pig citizen is none other than myself."

"Pigs, you have one here who has never disgraced you nor brought sorrow to your pig hearts."

"That one is none other than myself. And so, Pigs, I've gathered you around me, to tell you that lately you have not been appreciating me as I think you should."

"You've not been showing me the attentions and the respect which I feel I should have. Particularly, the attentions. So I hope you will all improve. You might start in by each hunting up some delicacy for me."

But the pigs went off grunting.

"How absurd for us to have come when he called. We might have known there was a catch, as they say, in it!"

Expert Advice

"I really can't learn to smoke," sighed Lady Clara Vere de Vere, "but when I decline cigarettes at the bridge club the other ladies lift their eyebrows in a way that is decidedly embarrassing."

"Say that your medical man positively forbids cigarettes," advised a duchess who was calling. "That will convey the impression that you have been a cutup in your time, and no lady of fashion will agitate her eyebrows at the doctor's orders."

Possible Reason

"I understand they won't allow automobiles on the island of Bermuda. Why is that?"

"I suppose the odors might affect the onion crop."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

ECONOMICAL DESSERTS

Gelatin desserts are one of the easiest to prepare, are wholesome and digestible. During the summer a light dessert is more wholesome than the heavier pastry and puddings.

Gelatin Prune Dessert.—Boil one pound of prunes in two cups of water overnight. Cook them in the same water until soft, then stone and cut them into quarters. To the prune liquor add enough boiling water to make two cups of liquid, soak two tablespoons of gelatin in one-half cup of water. Add one-half cup of sugar with one-quarter of a cup of lemon juice to the hot liquid. Strain and add the prunes and boil. Stir while cooking to prevent the prunes from settling. Serve with sugar and cream.

Prune Bread Pudding.—Butter slices of stale bread and cover with hot milk; add layers of stewed prunes and repeat until the dish is full. Bake in a moderate oven until well heated through. Serve with a sauce prepared by cooking together two tablespoons of sugar mixed with a tablespoonful of cornstarch in a cup of boiling water. When well cooked and smooth add a beaten yolk of egg and a cupful of orange juice. Serve at once.

Blueberry Pudding.—Take a can of blueberries. Spread bread with butter and arrange the slices in a bowl. Cover with the berries and juice until the bread has soaked up all it will absorb. Set away to chill. Unmold and serve with sugar and cream.

Apple Custard Pie.—Add a cupful of grated apple, two well-beaten eggs, one cupful of sweet cream and the grated rind of a lemon. Pour into a pastry-lined tin and bake. Cover with a meringue and brown.

Whipped Cream Cake.—Prepare a layer cake of two layers and put together, when cold, with sweetened and flavored whipped cream, adding for a variety a few crushed fresh berries, like strawberries or raspberries.

WEST PARK.

West Park, June 19.—Many of the West Park people attended the boat races at Poughkeepsie on Tuesday and enjoyed picnic suppers in their cars, returning after 8 o'clock.

The Holy Cross Monastery is improving its grounds east of the garden by the addition of a tennis court.

Mrs. Allan Gale will entertain the Junior Red Cross this week with a social afternoon.

The friends of Mrs. Richard Atkins will be glad to hear that after a serious illness her general health is much improved although she is not able to return to West Park from her daughter's home in Poughkeepsie.

It is the wish of what is left of the Clean Up Society that all persons on the highway would improve their places by cutting the tall grass and weeds. It is also desired that tourists will not throw picnic boxes and newspapers from their cars along the road. The society asks all to unite to make West Park a real park.

The burial service for Mrs. Harriet Dumont Thompson was held at the home of her sister Miss Rachel Dumont on Tuesday by the Rev. Richard C. Seering and the remains were taken to Woodlawn for burial on Wednesday.

Mrs. William Schickel and Miss Gretchen Schickel leave on Thursday for Ridgewood, N. J., to visit Mrs. Long, sister to Mrs. Schickel.

As is the case all over the state our ambitious young people are at present wrestling with the Regents examination papers and many fair brows are becoming tangled with the wrinkles which sometimes accompany deep thought and harassed memory.

POSTAL UNION IS 50 YEARS OF AGE

Meeting at Stockholm, July 4, Marks Semi-Centennial Anniversary.

Washington.—On July 4, the league of postal nations, the Universal Postal Union, embracing the earth, will hold its fiftieth anniversary at Stockholm, Sweden.

"It is significant that the delegates of the nations of the earth gather for this celebration of postal peace on July 4, American Independence day, because to the United States goes the honor of laying the foundation of the Universal Postal Union," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters at Washington.

"This confederation of nations, at fifty years, is the oldest comprehensive organization of world states. It has reduced the world's postage bill by billions, and increased the letters exchanged by millions. It has made neighbors of Kalamazoo and Timbuktu and put sewing machines in Turkish harems."

When New Zealand Letter Cost $2.50.

"The difference between $2.50 and a 2-cent postage stamp represents to the individual the most dramatic feature of the Postal union's accomplishments. Ten years before the Postal union was thought of it cost $2.50 to send an ounce letter to New Zealand; today it costs 2 cents.

"The blow to the high cost of mailing illustrated by the United States—New Zealand instance has been repeated to a lesser degree with all foreign correspondence. Reduction of the cost of an ounce letter to England from 12 cents to 2 cents, to France from 72 cents to 5 cents, and to Brazil from 30 cents to 2 cents, dates back to a conference called with the approval of Abraham Lincoln. Agreements of this conference were built into the postal convention signed at Berne, Switzerland, in 1873. Although the actual fifty-year anniversary occurred last year, the Universal Postal union will celebrate it at Stockholm this year, since 1924 is the year of its regular meeting.

"Dispatch of 22,000 sacks of mail from the New York foreign mail post office is not uncommon today. On one trip recently the Mauretania brought in 14,000 sacks.

"Last year the United States spent $10,000,000 to send 415,000,000 pieces of mail, excluding parcel post, abroad, and received $62,000,000 pieces. It is a far cry from these thousands of sacks of mail to Burns Coffee House, post office for all Manhattan for a century. In this old tavern near the Battery letters were stuck in a rack, to be called for by the addressees. Even the king of Hedjaz had to give up recently the old custom of dumping mail in a pile where the pilgrims in Mecca, at their leisure, picked out letters sent for them.

"No man who sticks a 5-cent stamp on a letter to a missionary in Tibet can realize the tribulation of his grandfather sending a letter only to Canton. First his grandfather had to choose one of five ways of sending the letter. It might go by German mails through England to Brindisi, Italy, to the Orient, or through Germany to Brindisi. It might pass through Great Britain via Southampton or via Brindisi, or might go by the United States packet. Each way had a different charge, varying from 20 cents to 65 cents. In our grandfathers' time each sender had to pay the cost of transportation over and above postage; now nations' representatives calculate transportation costs, cancel off like banks do with checks, and pay the charges.

Countries Not in Union.

"The parts of the world not represented in the Universal Postal union agreements today are Afghanistan, Arabia, Baluchistan, Johore and Trengganu in the Malay states, Maldiva islands, Northern and Southern Nigeria, Nyasaland, Northern Rhodesia, Santa Cruz Islands, Picatin Islands, Russia, Iraq and Tonga Islands.

"Through the offices of the Universal Postal union magazines have become international as well as national by virtue of the economy in cost to subscribers. Foreign mails take the National Geographic Magazine to 61 independent countries and 92 dependencies. The same material which is read by members of the society in the United States is read by other members in Gambia, Monaco, Abyssinia, Gabon, Zanzibar, the Society Islands and the Seychelles."

THE SMART WOMAN

GLORIES IN HER CHAINS.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

One of the things to which we look to Paris, is the original way French women have of making old things seem new, by a new manner of wearing. They suddenly wear a necklace so that it falls down the back instead of in the usual way, and a new fashion, or at least, a fad, is born.

They decide to wear old earrings and succeed in looking, not freakish, but chic, with a black pearl in one ear, a white one in the other. They adopt heavy looking chains for bracelets, or necklaces, and call them slave chains "getting away with it," as in the slang phrase.

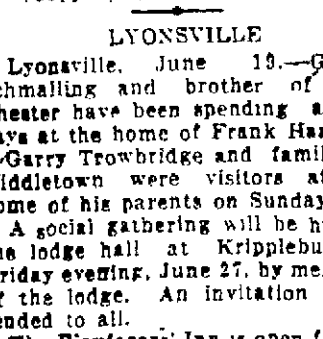

There are fads in jewelry as in everything else, certain stones have a vogue, go out of fashion and are not worn again by the fashionable for many years. There is a fad, for instance, for carnelians with onyx.

a black and red combination. There is also a fancy for black and white pearls, and not a care in the world whether they are real or artificial, next a passion for pearls and emeralds, a renaissance of the opal and so on.

Now there is a rumor that gold settings are coming in again—just as most of us have had our jewels reset in the platinum. Fortunately, Paris approves costume jewelry, the sort which may be effective without being costly. At present necklaces are linked in the varieties shown, and many others, and earrings still continue to just escape the shoulder.

Was skeptical of Kellogg's Bran until it gave him back his health

Naturally Mr. Carter—whose letter follows—was skeptical. He had tried practically everything for the relief of constipation. All had failed. But Kellogg's Bran brought him permanent relief, just as it has done for thousands of others. Read his letter:

Gentlemen:
I am 41 years old, and have been for years a great sufferer from constipation. I had to resign a clerical position because of rushes of blood to my head, some of which caused me to fall to the ground. I took an outdoor laboring job and tried for the first time, skeptically I admit, your Krumbled Bran. The result has been wonderful. I began to be normal after I had been on the Bran about three days. No more enemies, no more Old Dr. So-and-So's Pills, Epsom salts by the ton, etc., as infatigable. You have the most wonderful product for constipation I have ever seen or tried. Yours very gratefully,

L. T. Carter, 294 Nineteenth St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, does not irritate the intestines like drugs and pills. It acts exactly as nature acts. Eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the exclusive, nut like flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipe on every package. Sold by all grocers. Made in Battle Creek.

STEEL RING ON NECK HIS GOOD LUCK PIECE

It Was Oriental Sailer's Gift From Father as First Son and It Has a Charm.

Tacoma, Wash.—Ah Ding, a seaman on the sailing schooner Tseng Tai, wears a steel ring about his neck, placed over his head the day he was born, twenty-three years ago, by his father in recognition of being the first-born. Today the ring is a close fit, but brings good luck to the oriental salt. Ah Ding, who is a world traveler, declares he has seen flappers wearing rings as bracelets, wives as finger ornaments, and sees no reason why he should not follow his own national custom and wear his around his neck.

The ring also insures a good job, so Ah Ding never lacks a job. Sailing boat captains are eager to obtain the services of head-ringers like him and bid high for such good luck men. In certain regions in China fathers place steel rings over the heads of first-born sons to assure luck and happiness and long life. In six months Ah Ding has survived six typhoons, two battles with pirates, a fight with Swedish sailors, three sieges of fever, the Japanese earthquake and a ride on an office building elevator.

Congressman Operates Simian Farm on Island

Representative John Joseph Kindred of New York is operating a simian farm on a tropical island of Cocoa, Florida, for the study of transplantation of glands as a means of bringing about rejuvenation. When eight monkey members of a monkey tribe on the island ran amuck and disappeared, Congressman Kindred received a rush call. And now the representative who in private life is a physician of international fame, finds himself more or less the butt of jokes of his colleagues in the cloakrooms of the house. But wild-running monkeys, even though they are the best of the specimens that he had and the "spoofing" of his colleagues can't sway the New York member from his determination to study the possibilities of the latest in science as "a means of raising the hopes of worn-out old men."

In order to make doubly certain that no fire can break out in the building, a fixed rule prohibits placing of any rubbish in the basement. The heating plant has been removed to a specially built cellar apart from the hall. Installation of an automatic sprinkling system is under way.

BUFFALO BILL IN BRONZE ON GUARD

Statue of Famous Scout Will Be Unveiled at Cody in July.

Cody, Wyo.—Within a few months those who travel the old Wyoming trail to Yellowstone Park through the little town of Cody will come upon a bronze statue of the famous cowboy for whom the town was named—an equestrian statue, mounted on a granite terrace and silhouetted against the sky, the rider gazing westward to the Rockies.

A remarkable figure was Col. William F. Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill; a man whose life was filled with adventure. He was, at various times, a rider of the Pony Express when that was the only connection between the ranches and the rest of the world; a stage driver, a cowboy, a hunter, a guide, and an army scout. He engaged in fights with the Indians, in buffalo stampedes, and in thrilling old-fashioned round-ups. He always wore "shootin' irons" and seldom missed a target, even when it was in swift motion. He was thoroughly familiar with every nook and cranny of the Western plains, and mountains, and had hunted over almost every mile.

Great Bison Hunter. They called him Buffalo Bill because of his record in shooting those great beasts, the American bison. He killed more than 4,000 in a year and a half. In fact, the slaughter was so great that it caused a protest. The meat was not wasted, however, for at that time the Kansas Pacific railroad was in the course of construction and the buffalo meat was distributed to the workmen for food.

Wild riding and big-game shooting paid a bit as one grows older, so Colonel Cody capitalized his experiences by organizing a Wild West show. In his later days he did his cowboyboying more or less by proxy. But, all the thrill when the great Buffalo Bill himself rode out into the arena! How small boys adored his splendid riding and his handsome figure! The gay trappings of the show, the bucking bronchos, the gallant cowboys, the yelling Indians—well, even grown-ups enjoyed his dramatization of the West of pioneer days.

It was the traveling show that made Buffalo Bill popular in eastern America and in Europe. That show was an education in the thrills and hardships of frontier life; it gave vivid pictures of the difficulties of the early pathfinders of the nation, and illustrated the courage of pioneers and scouts.

The Fourth of July this year is the day chosen for the unveiling of the new statue. The ceremony will be a part of the program of the Cody Stampede, an exhibition of horsemanship and the prowess of the cowboys given yearly by the people of the neighboring ranches. For three days Main street is a mass of life and color, cowboys in chaps and colored shirts, cowgirls in broad-brimmed hats and picturesque riding clothes, Indians in gay blankets. For three days visitors can almost believe that the spirit of the old West has taken possession of Wyoming again, because all the features of the '70s are present.

Mrs. Whitney's Statue.

Colonel Cody's granddaughter, Miss Jane Cody Garlow, will unveil the bronze horseman, which is the work of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. Standing 15 feet high and mounted at a commanding altitude above the surrounding country, Buffalo Bill guards the trail. The statue is considered one of Mrs. Whitney's best pieces of work. No pains were spared to achieve perfection in every detail; a horse was sent from the old Cody ranch in order that the proper type of model should be available—just such a horse as the cowboy used to ride. Smoky, the model for the statue, was shipped East, and Mrs. Whitney chose the type of rider she wanted and then had the two go through their paces in Central park, while she studied each gesture and pose, selecting and rejecting time and again before she found what she believed would convey best the spirit of Colonel Cody's personality. At last visualizing him as reliving in his horse to listen for any sound that might be brought on the wind, she caught the desired pose.

Because of the size of the statue Mrs. Whitney had to have scaffolds and a revolving platform constructed so that she could move around her subject with ease as she worked.

When the question of placing the statue, with a suitable background arose, it was deemed necessary to build a special granite platform, which was no small piece of engineering. Mrs. Whitney made a trip to Cody so that she could see the exact setting of the work when it should be completed.

The magnificent granite terraces with their horse and rider form the center of a scene which has on one side Rattlesnake mountain, on the other Cedar mountain, both peaks snow-capped through most of the year. A stream of water has been directed into a channel at the base of the terrace as a reminder of Colonel Cody's interest in irrigation.

The Buffalo Bill American association, which has Gen. John J. Pershing for its chairman, is sponsoring the plan. This association "sponsors outdoor sports and individualism, and aims to pioneer the present generation with the pioneer spirit."

HIGHLAND

Highland, June 19.—Friday afternoon, June 13, was Club Day, and the doors of the M. E. Church parlor opened wide to welcome within its precincts. The Auxiliary Club members and light women, tastefully gowned, and faces full of earnest purpose, were welcomed by the genial hostesses, Mrs. Jacob Schuhle, Mrs. Orsen Sheeley, Mrs. Jack Wood, Mrs. Louis Martin. The president cordially greeted all. Then Mrs. J. R. Seaman read Scripture, Lord's prayer in unison and Mrs. L. Osterhout presided at piano for singing. The session was exceedingly busy and important. Reports from all committees were very satisfactory and all business was conducted without friction. The true club spirit reigned supreme. At the next meeting at Mrs. J. P. Whitley's it is the time for dues. After all business was finished the social side of the club was apparent. ## PASSPORTS TO ST. PETER IN OLD RUSSIAN GRAVES

Documents Recently Found Show They Were Issued Only to the Wealthy Class.

Leningrad.—Passports for the satisfaction of St. Peter were given to the departed early in the Nineteenth century throughout Russia, according to documents found recently in old graves near here. These documents were issued usually only to members of the wealthy classes, as records indicate that they cost a lot of gold, and were considered as a reasonable guarantee that the departed person so honored would be welcome at the Golden Gates.

A sample of the passports reads: "I, Nicholas Stobylev, bishop of St. Petersburg, do hereby certify that the person herein mentioned lived as a good Christian and, although he sometimes sinned, yet he confessed his sins and was forgiven. He worshiped the saints, he fasted and begged, and was human. Considering the fact that the dear departed one has made his peace with him, and confessed all to his father confessor, I gladly certify to this passport for presentation to St. Peter with the hope that it will be duly honored and that our beloved friend will have due and free access to Heaven and enjoy all the privileges therein forever and without any hindrance."

Was Admitted Because She Will Teach "Sloyd"

Miss Anna P. Berg, formerly of the Swedish department of education, who was allowed through Ellis Island despite being in excess of the Swedish quota, because she is here to teach "sloyd" in American schools.

"Sloyd" is the Swedish word for embroidery, knitting and all manner of fancy work.

Princeton's Carnegie Lake Filling With Mud

Princeton, N. J.—Carnegie lake, the artificial body of water given Princeton university in 1907 by Andrew Carnegie, is being filled with mud deposits from Stony Brook creek.

However, normal activity on the lake has not been curtailed and the racing shells use it daily.

The lake, which is 3 1/2 miles long and from 600 to 2,000 feet wide, was built over the bed of Stony Brook creek, and at the time of its construction it was recognized that the sediment deposited by the creek and by the Millstone river would have to be eliminated.

A dam was built, but it has not kept back as much mud as was expected.

Estimated cost of repairing the present damage would be in the neighborhood of $20,000, as large dredges will be necessary. The work will be started after commencement in June.

Fishermen Catch Trout in Hats at Vancouver

Vancouver, B. C.—The Fraser river is alive with cohoicans or candle fish, and the Dolly Varden trout are coming to the surface in such quantities that the fishermen can catch them in their hats from the sides of their boats.

These trout feed on the cohoicans, and when they are full come to the surface and float there for a while, going with the current instead of against it as is their custom.

Oohoicans are so full of oil that the trout become very fat after the small fish arrive in the river.

Same Birthday for Three Sons

Rules Girls Can Have Puffs

DAIRY

HEALTH IS MENACED BY DIRT IN MILK

The cook is as clean as the kitchen towel, and the dairyman is as clean as the dirtiest thing his milk touches, is the opinion of Ben F. Eldredge, dairy specialist of the extension service of the Utah Agricultural college. Unless everything, from the barn, cow and milker to the brush used on the pails, is perfectly clean, the milk is likely to become contaminated with harmful bacteria of filth. One sour rag used in washing a bucket will make an entire milking dangerous. There is no higher art than the production of wholesome human food, Mr. Eldredge believes, and he declares that if dealers who supply even a few families with milk fully realized the responsibility they bear toward the health of their patrons, they would redouble even their greatest care.

The best way to produce clean milk is to keep dirt out of it, Mr. Eldredge says. No amount of straining or clarifying can ever purify milk once infected with dirt or germs. This fact is particularly in evidence in the milk obtained from the single cow who supplies a few neighborhood families. The milk cannot be pasteurized, and too often a tell-tale residue is a common thing in the bottom of the bottle or bucket.

For preventing milk from ever becoming dirty, sunlight and steam are the best possible cleansers. Germs and harmful bacteria can live only a little time, and cannot multiply in the dry sunshine. Vessels properly scalded with steam can never infect milk. A clean dairy barn, dry bedding, a clean, healthy cow, a clean, healthy milker and sterilized utensils are what every producer of milk owes to his family and the community.

Iowa College Outlines

Dairying Fundamentals

Following an analysis of the work of cow testing associations in Iowa, dairy experts at Iowa state college emphasize the following points as deserving of consideration as a guide to increased profits from the dairy cow:

1. The production of feeds best suited to dairying, especially alfalfa hay.
2. The elimination of the scrub or grade sire.
3. The use of pure bred dairy sties from good producing ancestry.
4. The weeding out of unprofitable cows through cow testing associations.
5. Rational feeding.
6. Giving the cows the attention that their importance demands.
7. Regularity of milking and feeding.
8. Providing a succulent feed throughout the year.
9. Breeding cows to freshen in the fall of the year except when one is retelling milk.
10. Supplementing poor pastures in late summer with either summer silage or soiling crops.

Phosphorus Is Required in Ration of Dairy Cow

When the forage fed to cattle, sheep and horses consists of crops grown on acid soils or is of the non-legume type, the lime-carrying materials should be fed at the rate of three to four pounds to 100 pounds of grain. Even when legumes like alfalfa, clover and soybeans are fed the addition of lime-containing minerals will do no harm and may do a great deal of good.

The feeding of wheat bran and middlings provides phosphorus which is very necessary in the ration of a dairy cow. While it is true that sodium phosphate added to the ration of a dairy cow while she was dry increased the milk flow in the following period, further experiments are deemed advisable to prove that phosphate feeding can be generally practiced under diverse feeding systems with profit.

Dairy Notes

For the dairy herd soy bean hay is the best annual hay crop that can be grown and it makes a very acceptable substitute for clover or alfalfa when these hays are not at hand.

Oat and pea hay well cured makes very desirable food for dairy cows or for sheep. It is also satisfactory as horse feed, though rather soft for horses that are required to do hard work.

Cows receiving all the alfalfa they care to consume are getting enough protein to permit them to do good work. On good quality alfalfa hay, cows have produced more than 300 pounds of fat in a year.

Every cow owner is indebted to those enterprising men who have worked hard to broaden the market for dairy products.

Corn silage and alfalfa hay are the best roughages for dairy cattle, while corn fodder and timothy hay have proved the poorest.

For the dairyman who has little or no permanent pasture, Sudan grass may well be used as a pasture crop immediately following the oat pasture.

Hupmobile Shows You How To Get The Facts That Count

Before you lay down hard-earned money for an automobile—a Hupmobile or any other—possess yourself of vital facts.

For the first time in motor car annals, Hupmobile has shown the way to get at facts that count.

Facts that will tell you quickly and clearly why one car is better than another—why fair externals may conceal inherent weaknesses—why many things are of less importance than processes of manufacture—why a couple of hundred dollars more is not extravagance but a necessary expenditure.

Step into the Hupmobile salesroom and ask to see the Parts Display.

On these boards, you will find displayed all the principal parts of the Hupmobile. Each is ticketed with a card that tells plainly and concisely in black type how it is made and what it is made of.

Each card also describes in red type the lesser materials and processes often used for similar parts in other cars. Come in and see this object lesson in invisible value and invisible costs.

ILLINOIS HIGHWAY MOTORCYCLE AMBULANCE

Cook County (Illinois) highway police have adopted a new method of patrolling the roads with a motorcycle which serves the highway policeman as a mount and is instantaneously converted into an ambulance in case of necessity. The side car is equipped with an adjustable end which may be lowered and permits the side car to serve as a stretcher on wheels. It is expected to prove a great boon in country accidents.

BE DELIBERATE IN CHOOSING DEALER

Beware of Salesman Who Is Willing to Make Big Allowance on Old Car.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering.)

Every dealer promises satisfactory service—free service for the first few months or the first year with certain restrictions, but fully satisfactory service always. He will tell you that his particular brand of service is at least equal, and usually he will say it is superior, to that of his competitors. It is as much of his selling talk as stating that he has the best car for the money. So beware! Do not accept these statements but investigate by talking to present owners. A glance through the shop will often prove whether what he says is likely to be true or not, and additional information along this line may be obtained from owners. This precaution will often prevent a rude awakening.

Indications of Stability
The shop is not the only angle, however, from which to judge the dealer. The condition of his showroom, whether it is neat and clean, whether his cars are shining or not, the personnel of his employees and the general atmosphere are important indications. Perfection in these little details shows business ability; shows that he is up-to-date, and consequently will give you the sort of treatment you expect.

The financial status of the business is also important. If it is a thriving, flourishing going concern it is safe to assume that parts and repairs may be obtained for years to come. A healthy business usually has a good shop; the shop is the heart of the business. If money is lacking the shop is the first to feel the pinch, because it rarely makes a profit anyhow. It is merely a means to further sales.

Allowance on Old Car.
Beware of the dealer who is willing to make a big allowance on your old car. If he gives you more than the car is worth he is really selling the new car at a discount. It has been proved time and time again that it is impossible for a car to be sold at less than list price and for the dealer still to make any money. If he sells the car at a discount there is a false value somewhere. A car sold for less than list price is rarely a bargain; invariably that car would be cheaper and more satisfactory if purchased at full price. A discount means a reduction in value.

The most important function of the dealer after the car has been delivered is to give service—free service for minor adjustments, perhaps, but prompt and satisfactory service whether the work be gratis or not. When a car breaks down, the seriousness of the breakdown is not truly measured by its size or importance, but by the money it costs and the time it takes to place the car in running order again. With this fact in mind it is easy to see how essential it is to be careful in selecting a dealer.

AUTOMOBILE FACTS

The plunger inside the tire valve is responsible for the life of the tire, and should never be removed unless absolutely necessary.

Eighteen million pounds of sodalite, a surplus war explosive made by mixing TNT and sodium nitrate, is to be used in state and federal road construction.

Scale in the radiator can be overcome by mixing a little glycerin with the cooling water. The glycerin should be used in proportions of half a pint to each five gallons of water.

It is enough for traffic people to watch well-kept and conditioned cars without imposing on them the task of overseeing all the old junk on wheels. Just when a car should be "chloroformed" is a problem.

Method to End Body Squeaks on Machine

Here is a simple trick that any motorist can use which will help very materially in eliminating body squeaks. Before washing the car apply a mixture of kerosene and lubricating oil around the body crevices. After this is done rock the car in order to allow the lubricant to penetrate. It is also advisable to let up on the body bolts and back them up with grease. The grease will work over the surface of the bolt upon tightening and thereby prevent the squeak at its source.

Leakage at Pump Boxes and Hose Connections

Leakage at pump stuffing boxes and hose connections, which will open up when the car is operating on the road, often are not in evidence when the machine is stationary, and it is difficult to determine where the leaks are unless pressure is applied to the motor. If that can be done, the leaks will show up plainly.

To apply the necessary pressure, it is necessary merely to modify a radiator cap by the addition of a tire valve, as shown. With this in place, pump about five pounds of air pressure into the circulation system. It is obvious that a rubber gasket should be placed under the cap and a cork in the overflow pipe.

The same device is useful when flushing the radiator or using a scale remover, because the pressure aids materially in forcing the scale and muck out through the drain. When the location of a leak is known, it can usually be repaired easily.—By G. A. Luers in Popular Science Monthly.

Some Big Mysteries of Automobiles Explained

It's funny how people ride around in cars and never know what makes 'em go. And just because they don't know, they get into a lot of trouble they would have avoided if they did know. The clutch is a mechanical hand which holds the engine shaft and the drive shaft together when the car is going and lets go and separates them when the car is not going and the engine is.

The function of the gears is to provide a different ratio of engine revolution to rear wheel revolution; not, as some people fondly suppose, to allow the driver to drive at different speeds, but to provide him with more power when it is needed.

The differential is an arrangement of gears which is an elastic transmitter of power to the rear wheels—it can deliver more power to one wheel than the other and, therefore, can allow one wheel to revolve faster or slower than the other.

Organized Motortruck Lines Being Discussed

Organized motortruck lines, routes through designated streets, will be one of the solutions of the rail terminal problem in large cities. In the opinion of a transportation discussion at the recent annual meeting of the American Economic Association in Washington, Prof. Emory R. Johnson of the University of Pennsylvania led the conference on this subject.

It was the general opinion that freight cars must be taken out of congested city terminals and unloaded on inexpensive land outside the cities in conjunction with common carrier motor collection and delivery service.

Broadcast Bill's Radiolays

By WILLIAM E. DOUGLASS

I've often watched them fellows playin' golf near Palmer's hill an' often thought how easy it must be to sock that pill. In fact it seemed so simple I could never figure out what there wuz to the game to get so fevered up about. Now there's ol' Hiram Cuttlefish, of course he's made his pile but half the time he's worryin' about his "golfin' style." I think that's what he calls it. How he should address the ball. Some fellows say most anything not worryin' at all. The thing that has me puzzled is the ornithology this "birdie" "eagle" business sounds like so much Greek to me I reckon someday mebbe I'll now what them pet names mean an' likewise now the difference twixt a bogey an' a green. I spose I'll learn exactly just what club I'd ought to use an' from about a dozen know the proper one to choose. I've only had one lesson but at that I'm learnin' though. Yep, last night wuz my first one, got it on my Radio. Not havin' any clubs of course I had to use the broom, you'd ought to see me swingin' all around our sittin' room. In perfect form my first swing almost spoiled the evenin's fun it ended in a picture. Now what's that a "Hole in One". But little things like that of course don't bother me at all I'm only waitin' now to get a chance to swat that ball. I'll get some clubs this afternoon an' knock that pill a mile. I'll betcha it won't take me long to get my "golfin' style." An' with an expert teacher I won't hafta learn at all that lingo what some fellows use when they address the ball. ### RECITAL GIVEN BY SON OF MAYOR BLOCK

A large and delighted audience listened to the recital given by Joseph Block, elocution pupil of Miss Mauterstock, and some of her advanced piano pupils at the Trinity M. E. Sunday school room on Wednesday evening. Young Block, who is a son of Mayor Block, though but twelve years old now, has been studying for the past five years with Miss Mauterstock and has acquired in that time a repertoire of some seventy-five selections from the best authors and poets. Out of this large number, Miss Mauterstock chose for her pupil those which he gave at the recital on Wednesday evening. While the memory work of the lad is astonishing, his interpretation of the readings he gives is by far the most remarkable phase of his really talented performances and always impresses his audiences. The young people who gave the musical numbers all did admirably showing considerable talent and capable and painstaking instruction. The program was as follows:

Piano duet—Invitation to the Dance Weber
Dorothy Myers, Miss Mauterstock
Reading—Gentlemen, the King!
Joseph Block
Piano solo—Scarf Dance, Chaminade
Caroline Port

We'll Not Forget

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WE'LL not forget you, never fear;
Wherever you may go, my dear,
However far you have to stray,
However long you have to stay,
The friends of old, the friends you knew,
Will think of you.

We'll not forget you, friend of ours,
The flow'rs fade, but who the flow'rs
Forgets? Their sweetness, after all,
When winter comes we still recall.
And we who know your sweetness,
Will think of you.

We'll not forget you. Do not praise
Our loyalty. A thousand ways
You leave yourself engraved upon
The hearts of friends when you are gone.
Because of all you used to do
We'll think of you.

We'll not forget you. Others' grace
Shall bring the memory of your face.
And others' kindness shall remind
Our hearts of some one who was kind.
When we behold the good, the true,
We'll think of you.

MC ELRATH A MARKSMAN IN U. S. MARINE CORPS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 20.—By making several hits on the bull's eye at ranges from 200 to 600 yards, while at target practice at Port au Prince, Haiti, Edward Phillips McElrath, formerly of Kingston, N. Y., has qualified as a marksman in the U. S. Marine Corps, according to the official target bulletin recently published at Marine Corps Headquarters here.

It is customary for each Marine to shoot on the rifle range at least once a year, special instruction in the best methods to acquire skill with the rifle being given to each man individually. Marines who qualify are awarded badges of medals, indicating the degree of skill they have attained. Firing is conducted on Marine Corps rifle ranges whenever climatic conditions permit.

Edward, who is a son of William McElrath, 508 Wilbur avenue, Kingston, joined the Marine Corps at New York city in July, 1922. In recent weeks he has been stationed with the Marines in Haiti, where they are helping to preserve the stability of government in the little West Indian Republic.

League Finances In Good Shape

and no less important is the educational progress that has been made towards better understanding of our marketing problems. Our three years' experience has taught us that many things can be accomplished when we work together with a common motive in view.

"To be properly understood is what our farmers need most in this new plan of marketing, and it should be most gratifying to all members of the League to know that this movement is more generally endorsed today than ever before in our history.

A review of the year 1923 shows that agriculture in general is in a sad plight. There has been little if any change in the value of farm products. Especially is this true of milk, which has shown a very marked decline. While this adverse condition exists on our side of the ledger, commodities which we buy—labor, equipment, and supplies—have continued to climb to a point where a unit of our production will purchase less of the things we need than ever before.

"A year ago at this time we were very hopeful. We anticipated greater consumption and a shortage in production, but this failed to materialize and a surplus was handled throughout the year, even through the months that are normally short. The break in the market came in November after a price of $3.45 per hundred had been set on Class 1 fluid milk. This decline in Class 1 prices was brought about by competitive conditions within our own territory. Next, cheese started on the decline, followed by condensed milk products and then by butter. Our farmers have been watching the steady decline in the value of these products month by month, and at the end of each month we thought we had hit the bottom, but still our prices have been shot to a lower level and today they are at the lowest point in over a year. Greater production throughout the world is responsible for the decline in all classifications other than Class 1. Chaotic as this condition is, one of the brightest silver linings that I see in the clouds around us is the fact that we have learned to work together and have a mutual idea of how this problem can be solved. This ray of hope is locked up in your own organization, which is the only vehicle that can carry us through such distressing times.

"The success of your association, of course, will be measured by the support that the industry gives to it. I do not believe it would be exaggerating to state that the only gain made in American agriculture in the past five years is the development of unit marketing organizations, for through them the farmer's have learned to apply successful business experience to their problems.

"While this movement did not contemplate nor has it been able to override the law of supply and demand, it has proven conclusively that it can stabilize the markets where the producers have been well organized.

"The Dairymen's League Co-operative Association is not built around a group of a few officers, who are in reality servants, but it is built around the individual and unless he is willing to exercise the franchise which the by-laws of this association give him, he cannot expect the movement to succeed.

"Much of the success of a membership organization will be measured by the extent of the support that the individual personally gives to it.

"Let me review briefly a few of the high spots in our record of accomplishments during the past fiscal year.

"The average gross pool price for all grade B milk at the base zone, 201 to 210 miles from New York City, and testing 3 per cent butter fat, sold by the League during the past year is $2.10. This is twenty cents per hundred higher than price for the fiscal year which ended March 31, 1923.

"The average net pool price which includes certificates of indebtedness is $2.01 per hundred pounds as compared with $1.83 for the previous year or eighteen cents more. The average cash distribution is $1.917, as compared with $1.692 a year ago or $2.25 more. The average deduction per hundred pounds for certificates of indebtedness is $0.0957 as against $0.1376 last year, or a little over four cents less. The average total administrative charges are $0.0616 as against $0.0635 a year ago or nearly one cent per hundred pounds less.

"These are indisputable facts in our year's progress, and show distinct improvement in the returns made to our members, in actual dollars and cents. This improvement in money returns should bring great encouragement to all our members, especially in view of the unfavorable conditions existing in the markets throughout the latter part of the year. I challenge any cooperative association in the country to show a better record for the same period of time.

"We have also made similar progress in the matter of developing our own fluid markets. Of all the milk handled through dealers as well as through the League's own plants, 41 per cent was sold in Class 1 as fluid milk as compared with 35.8 per cent the previous year, an increase of 5.2 per cent. Of all the milk marketed by the association through its own plants 51.4 per cent went into the fluid markets, as against 28.5 per cent the year before or an increase of 22.9 per cent.

"Our gross sales of all products for the year are $75,132,468.64. That our gross sales are slightly less than last year is accounted for by the decrease in production of milk. The total quantity of milk handled by the association during the year is 3,096,000,000 pounds, as against 3,734,000,000 pounds a year ago.

"Let me briefly call your attention to one or two features in our sales report. Total sales through our own operations were $25,087,515.62, as against $22,428,406.36 a year ago. The biggest increase is shown in sales of fluid and skim milk through our own operations, this total being $13,980,104.86 as compared with $8,359,362.30 last year, or an increase of more than five and one half million dollars. Our ice cream sales increased from $672,255.59 last year to $935,764.43 this year.

"Another outstanding accomplishment of the year has been the increased efficiency within our organization. We have established ourselves on a cost basis and have tightened our control on every operation. Every effort has been made to eliminate unnecessary expense.

"The recent decisions of several milk dealers to make their purchases exclusively through the League is a fine compliment to our methods and facilities. With few exceptions the attitude of the dealer seems to be changing from that of out and out antagonism to a desire to cooperate.

"There is no marketing problem today that cannot be solved if the farmers want it solved. The problem is entirely in their hands. I am sure our members know this and will continue to press forward with unrelenting vigor."

Musk Oxen Drive Off Hungry Wolf Packs

Of all the strange animals of North America the musk ox is one of the queerest and most interesting, says William T. Hornaday in the Youth's Companion. First of all, it is a true connecting link between wild cattle and sheep. It is able to live and thrive in cold arctic regions, even up to the farthest north for hoofed animals, the most northerly point of Greenland. It has horns like the wild Cape buffalo of Africa, cattlelike hoofs, and its flesh looks and tastes like beef. It has next its body a dense coat of soft, woolly hair and through this grows a coat of very long, straight brown hair, like that of the Tibetan yak. It has a tail so short and small that the animal seems tailless. Its supply of "musk" and its "musky" odor are both wholly imaginary.

For thousands of years the musk ox herds have been preserving their calves from the hungry wolf packs of the North by most excellent military strategy. When wolves threaten a herd it at once forms a compact circle, with the adult bulls and cows standing shoulder to shoulder in the outer circle, and with all the calves and young stock inside.

Even to hungry wolves that circle of deadly down-drooping horns is impenetrable. A bull may leave his place for a moment to rush out 30 yards or so in an effort to puncture a wolf, but he never is lured too far. Back he goes to the circle, backs into his place and plays the game to the end.

Remained Single for Various Odd Reasons

In the course of a breach of promise case a man confessed that he had avoided the marriage he had contemplated because he had a fondness for a certain dish to which, he discovered, his prospective bride strongly objected, and it was on this score that he broke off the engagement, London Tit-Bits states.

A well-known man of letters once confessed that he had consistently shirked the ordeal of marriage because it involved what was to him a still greater ordeal, that of proposing.

And there were at least a score of women known to this man and his friends who would have been only too glad to have been led to the altar by him. That none was destined to be so escorted was due, simply and solely, to his rooted aversion to proposing.

An actor, famous in his day, once declared that his reason for remaining a bachelor was that he preferred breakfasting in absolute peace and quietness.

It was his custom, on rising at seven o'clock, to have his breakfast by the fire, instead of at the table in the usual fashion. The meal was laid ready and he simply helped himself, allowing no one to disturb him until 10:30, while he read his letters and papers in silence.

To marry, he said, would mean the breaking of a long-established habit and because of this he declined to take the step.

Business Has Outgrown Present Building And New Sale And Service Station for Paige and Jewett Business.

Home K. Kuhlmann, distributor for Paige and Jewett cars for Ulster county, has purchased property at 721 Broadway extending back for a distance of about 200 feet and also the property at 21 Liberty street upon which he will shortly begin the erection of a large modern sales and service station. Plans for the new building have not been completed but it is expected that work will be commenced this season. The property purchased forms an L shaped lot with fifty feet frontage on Broadway. The Broadway portion of the building will be devoted to sales rooms and office room while the entrance from Liberty street will be to the machine shop and garage.

Mr. Kuhlmann of Ellenville and his local manager Dr. Morton Low have built up a large business at their present quarters on St. James street. The business has grown to such an extent that new and larger quarters are necessary to take care of the increase in business.

Although plans have not been completed the building will be of brick construction, modern in all respects, with salesrooms and offices and a garage and fully equipped machine shop in connection. The estimated cost will be in the neighborhood of $50,000.

The real estate transaction was consummated through Albert Cook who was also the broker who sold the property at 21 Liberty street to Mr. Low. Some time ago. This property which Mr. Low purchased some time ago has been purchased by Mr. Kuhlmann in order to give him a frontage on Liberty street where the entrance to the new garage and machine shops will be located.

Two Camps Open to Local Y. W. C. A.

The girls of the local Y. W. C. A. are to have ample opportunity to enjoy camping this summer, the use of both the Newburgh and the Poughkeepsie association camps being extended to the local association girls.

The Newburgh camp is located near Modena, making it particularly accessible, and an opportunity for sports, dramatics, swimming, boating, classes in arts and crafts, and many other attractions are listed in its program. The camp will be open to grade school girls until the middle of July, and to high school girls the last two weeks of July. Throughout August it is open to any girl over twelve years of age.

The Poughkeepsie Camp, "Cedar-cliff," is an attractive estate about two miles from Poughkeepsie, with almost a hundred acres of beautiful lawns and old English gardens. It has been kindly loaned by Mrs. John F. Seaman, and is admirably adapted for a vacation resort. During the first two weeks of July, the camp will be open to school girls, and during the remainder of the summer, preference will be given to self-supporting girls.

Details regarding these two camps may be secured at the local Y. W. C. A. and it is expected that several times during the summer special parties from the local association will arrange to spend a few days at both Modena and Cedarcliff.

KID MULES FOR BOUDOIR

A very acceptable gift for a bride or the girl graduate is a pair of kid mules for the boudoir. They may be of silver or gold, or colored kid leather with a trim of a contrasting color. Footwear for the boudoir is intended to be gay, dainty and frivolous and the delicately colored kid mules fill the bill in a highly satisfactory manner. Also, there is comfort with no sacrifice to daintiness in a kid slipper for the boudoir, since the softness and flexibility that is characteristic of kid adapts it to all the purposes where comfort is desired. The stout woman, in particular, shows wisdom when she chooses kid footwear for all occasions.

The matching of colors is important in the selection of boudoir slippers. Silver, gold, or black kid may be used with any color of negligee, but where other colors are desired it is well to choose a pair that repeats the color of the negligee or the dominant color in the trimming. A negligee in turquoise blue and silver is exquisite with a pair of blue kid mules having silver kid heels. In making a gift to the bride, it is highly important to ascertain the color of the particular part of the wardrobe meant for the boudoir before purchasing the boudoir slippers or mules.

Guard Against Poison

There are many schemes for marking poison bottles, but here is one of the safest and best. By the simple means of pasting a strip of sandpaper over the face of bottles containing poison, says Science and Invention, the danger of getting a bottle by mistake, even on account of darkness, is eliminated. Persons grasping the bottle will receive no discomfort, but will get sufficient warning as to its poisonous contents. Most of the body of the bottle should be covered with sandpaper. A small label designating the poison should be pasted somewhere above the sandpaper.

Louis Simon Was Handcuffed

Local Taxi Driver Arrested at Rhinebeck Ferry Shed by Officer Entrott on Charge of Violating Cab Ordinance—Case Partly Tried Today.

Thursday afternoon Policeman Entrott arrested Louis Simon, a local taxi driver, at the Rhinebeck ferry shed on a charge of violating the taxi ordinance which prohibits soliciting of fares while standing more than five feet from the cab.

The case came up for a hearing before Judge Robert G. Groves in police court today. Attorney Carl J. Flanagan, who appeared for Simon, asked for an immediate trial on the ground that he had an important witness—the man alleged to have been solicited. The witness lived in Boston, Mass., and would be unable to appear at an adjourned day and was ready in court to testify.

Judge Groves said that the authorities were unable to proceed as Corporation Counsel James Jenkins was busy elsewhere. It was rather an unusual procedure, he said, but if Attorney Flanagan was willing he would take the testimony of the witness—Stephen F. Keegan—out of the regular order.

Mr. Keegan said that he got off the ferry carrying two heavy bags and as he approached the taxi men he beckoned to one of them who had transported him about town several times before. The one he beckoned did not respond but Simon stepped forward and was about to take his bags when Officer Entrott arrested him. He said the officer grasped Simon by the arm and the next thing he knew Simon was on the ground and the officer over him handcuffed him.

Mr. Keegan said he became so agitated over the matter that he drove to police headquarters and saw Chief Wood and told him he thought it was the "most unjustified arrest he had ever seen."

In reply to questions by Attorney Flanagan the witness said he did not hear the officer use any indecent language. He said he had appeared in court of his own free will and did not even know Simon's name until he heard it this morning. He was also unacquainted with Attorney Flanagan.

The case, which promises to be interesting, was then adjourned to next Tuesday morning.

Italian Genius Came to Aid of British Library

The British museum library is the first library of the modern world. Like many other British institutions it owes much of its greatness to a foreigner, Anthony Panizzi, a renegade Italian. Born at Modena in 1797 Panizzi became a student at Parma and then joined a revolutionary movement in his native duchy.

The revolution failed and Panizzi fled; first to Switzerland and then across Europe, arriving in a destitute condition in London. He became a teacher of Italian, received an appointment at the library, and came into power as its keeper in the first year of Queen Victoria's reign.

At that time the library, which had been founded in 1753, was languishing for want of intelligent supervision. It contained a valuable collection of some 250,000 books, but the cataloguing and arrangements for reference were bad.

When Panizzi left his service, some thirty years later, it contained 650,000 volumes, housed under a single dome. This dome, which is second only in size to that of St. Peter's, Rome, was one of the many clever ideas of Panizzi who was altogether a remarkable character. He was knighted some time before his death in 1879.

Not to Be Outdone

It was the last day of school before annual spring vacation and a teacher in the junior high school at Anderson was having little success with a class of pupils whose thoughts were elsewhere on the vacation than on studies. With the training of a first-rate school mistress she feigned that all was well with her, but school children are not "fooled" by a teacher.

Just as the last class of the day adjourned, she made this remark to the students:

"I hope you all have a very enjoyable spring vacation, and hope that when you come back you'll be in your right minds—"

"Same to you," the children replied in unison.—Indianapolis News.

Fruitful Land

It has been said that there is no place in South Africa where some variety fruit will not grow and thrive. Apples, apricots, avocado pears, bananas, cherries, gooseberries, figs, grapefruit, lemons, limes, pineapples, plums, quinces, melons, olives, oranges and peaches are grown in the Union on a commercial scale.

One of the greatest advantages held by South Africa as a fruit exporting country is that, owing to its geographical position, its products reach the British market in the off season, and may also reach the United States. The trade has been remunerative despite heavy spoilage.

Disciplined by Their New Schoolmaster

By J. B. AYRES

(Copyright, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE farmer looked at the slim, bespectacled young man in front of him and gave a contemptuous grunt.

"So you're the new schoolmaster of Four Corners?" he said. "Yes, I guess I can board you. I boarded the last three schoolmasters. My terms are twenty dollars a month, payable in advance."

"Why in advance?" inquired Mr. Pendleton quietly.

"Because you won't last a month," answered Silas Prettyman. "None of 'em does."

In spite of his anticipations, Mr. Pendleton's heart sank as he took his place at the desk.

The school consisted of boys and girls of all ages, from Jim Smith, a husky youth of some twenty years, who was still struggling over the mysteries of long division, and Miss Susie Connor, a farmer's daughter, who attended principally to be a sort of monitor to the little ones, down to the staid little ones of seven and eight years.

It was after school on that day that Smith came insolently up to Pendleton.

"Say, you're the one-lunger, ain't you?" he asked. "We don't want to be hard on a feller what's only got one lung. So I'm going to make things easy for you, if you act right. Understand?"

Before Pendleton had recovered from his surprise, Smith had slouched away, leaving the young man gasping at his pupil's audacity.

"No corporal punishment," was the slogan in Four Corners, which prided itself on being an enlightened community. But, even if such a method of discipline had been permitted, how would it have been enforced?

The question was prompted by the pandemonium that followed upon Mr. Pendleton's resolute rejection of Jim Smith's proposition.

Smith lounged insolently in his seat; Smith talked with his neighbors and contemptuously refused to recite his lessons.

"I told yer what it would be if you didn't do as I said," he explained to Mr. Pendleton, when the schoolmaster remonstrated with him privately. "Get out of the school? Say, yer crazy. What'd I get out for when I'm having the time of my life here?"

There was one thing that kept the schoolmaster to his work. That was Susie Connor. A strong attachment had begun to dawn between the young man and the pretty country lass.

"If I were you, Horace," she said one day—they had begun unconsciously to call each other by their first names—"I would try to make a real school here."

On the next day Smith cast aside all pretense at discipline. His remarks—made in class—were brief and pointed.

"You're sweet on her," he said, indicating the girl, whose face was mantled with red. "She's my gal, Mr. Schoolmaster—understand? And I won't have any miserable, measly interloper coming here fooling round Susie."

Mr. Pendleton had been aware that Smith had a calf-like attachment for the girl, but it had never occurred to him to take him seriously.

He looked up hopelessly, and he saw a strange look in Susie's eyes. He could not help interpreting it aright. It said: "Are you man enough to prevent my being insulted and to stand up for me?"

"Mean that, Smith?" asked Mr. Pendleton, leaving his desk and crossing the floor.

Smith leaped at him with a hellow. "Ah, sure!" he mimicked. "You've had your day, Mr. Schoolmaster, and now you can git, because this school won't open any more so long as you're in this town, you snivelling hound."

"Smith," said Horace Pendleton, "you are a bad boy and you have the makings of a bad man in you. Do you see that switch in the corner? Go and bring it to me."

The lout stared at him incredulously; then, with swinging arms, he rushed at him. Next moment, he found himself lying on the floor.

The schoolmaster ranked him from the floor and grasped him with one hand by the collar. And Smith crept to the corner—then, with a wild yell threatening vengeance, he had burst out of the door and was running in the direction of his home.

"This will mean good-by, Susie," said the young schoolmaster, after the wide-eyed, respectful class had been dismissed.

But when he reached his home Silas Prettyman was waiting for him with a hearty handshake.

"I wouldn't ha' believed it of you," he exclaimed. "Why, it's all over the town and everybody's saying as how we can begin to have a real school. You—little—whippersnapper! Let me feel your arm. Gosh—almighty, where did you git that?"

"Oh, I used to be lightweight boxer at Yale," answered the schoolmaster, cheerfully. "But how about the corporal punishment rule, Farmer?"

Prettyman grinned. "Say, young feller," he said, "the man who wins out makes his own rules in general. An' I want to put in the first bid for boarding you and Susie till you get your house fixed. Thirty-five a month. Will be—and you needn't pay in advance. I guess you'll last now."

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 20.—After a brief display of strength, reactionary tendencies developed in the forenoon trading on the stock exchange today.

As there was nothing in the current news which could be calculated to affect values adversely, the receding trend could be properly ascribed to selling by speculators wishing to turn part at least of their accumulated paper profits into actual cash.

Buying of stocks, sponsored by pools was the feature of the opening dealing. The boldness of some of these moves was illustrated by the way in which American Water Works was marked up. On a transaction of a single 100 shares this stock jumped over 7 points to 84, representing a gain of nearly 13 points from yesterday's low. Other public utilities were moderately strong, while industrial specialties were featured by an additional advance of 3 points in Mathieson Alkali.

Profit taking appeared in such volatile issues as American Water Works, General Electric, East Iron Pipe and Colorado Fuel, causing recessions ranging from 2 to 4 points. This encouraged realizing in the entire list. Tire stocks, however, were under steady pressure, Kelly Springfield was extremely weak breaking through 10.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent. Oils picked up strength in the afternoon, following a display of hesitancy. With the disappearance of pressure against Atlantic Refining, this stock rallied in good form, but Atlantic Refining Preferred was offered down to 110, a 4 1/2 point loss. Davison Chemical was another issue showing weakness, while tire shares were unfavorably influenced by reports of a general downward revision of tire prices. Colorado Fuel, General Electric and East Iron Pipe were subjected to profit taking, but consequently declined were partly retraced later on. Independent steels and motors were slightly easier, but equipments and sugars revealed steadiness. Money conditions were easy, call money being renewed and offered at 2 per cent.

800 BOSTON STREETS TO BE GIVEN NEW NAMES

Application in the Names of Them
oughness Reaches 3,000, Commissioner Learns.

Boston.—With a movement under way to change the names of nearly 800 Boston thoroughfares, this city's tangled street situation, over the heads of the visitors and travelers, may be traveled by next year, in so far as application in names is concerned.

Chairman John H. L. Noyes of the street commissioners has laid plans for one of the greatest municipal christening parties ever carried out.

Impressed more and more by the complications arising from the repetition of identical street names in various districts of the city, and sometimes even in the same district, Chairman Noyes has amassed figures and facts showing that Boston has six Washington streets and five Washington places within the city limits, not including Washington Street North.

He has found that there are six streets named after the well-known Adams family and that in addition four "blind alleys" in various streets are by the name of "Adams place."

On the list of 3,100 street names where duplication occurs approximately 1,900 distinctly different names appear. Basing their calculation on these figures, the officials have estimated that the difference represents the number of streets which must be renamed, approximately 1,900 in all.

Further perusal of the city's street lists reveals five Auburn streets, five Austin streets, five Elm streets, five Everett streets, five High streets, five Park streets, five School streets and five Water streets. There are five separate Lincoln places. There are four Brook streets and three Brooks places. Four streets bear the name of Allen and four more are named Alston. Similar instances occur almost indefinitely.

Chairman Noyes has admitted the magnitude of his task in finding 1,900 new names for thoroughfares. Besides soliciting suggestions from Bostonians, his board will study the street lists of other cities and towns in the United States, hoping here and there to find a name as yet unused in Boston.

Scarlet Fever Serum Is Pronounced Successful

Baltimore.—A new serum which is said to give promise of revolutionizing the method of treating scarlet fever has been tried out with "very favorable" results in 18 cases at the Sydenham hospital here.

The new curative is being developed by Dr. Alphonse Raymond Dochez, an associate professor of medicine at Columbia university, and its successful use has also been reported by hospitals in New York, New Haven, Conn., and Peeking.

Injection of the new potion into muscles of the patient is said generally to have the effect of reducing the temperature to normal in about twelve hours, and in practically every case the rash accompanying the fever also is dispelled.

Dr. Byrckhead Macgowan, superintendent of the Sydenham hospital, explained that the serum is almost alone in the field of scarlet fever treatments. It is produced through immunization of horses and is the result of experiments conducted by Doctor Dochez since about 1917.

Each Person Should Eat 520 Lbs. of Vegetables

Berkeley, Cal.—Nutritional specialists at the University of California have estimated the amount of vegetables required by a single person during a year, and to assist home gardeners further, have fixed the space needed to grow enough vegetables for a family.

According to the table, the vegetable needed by each person are: 37 pounds of greens, 80 pounds of carrots, 20 pounds of cabbage, 30 pounds of turnips, 50 pounds of beets or parsnips, 15 pounds of string beans, 17 pounds of squash, 180 pounds of potatoes, 50 ears of corn, 40 pounds of onions and 55 pounds of tomatoes.

The space for growing these vegetables, allowing for a normal fallure or partial loss, is given as follows: Spinach, 250 feet of rows; chard, 75 feet; carrots, 50 feet; cabbage, 20 feet; turnips, 40 feet; beets or parsnips, 50 feet; string beans, 40 feet; peas or lima beans, 50 feet; potatoes, 400 feet; corn, 50 feet; onions, 65 feet; tomatoes, 60 feet; squash, one hill.

Rubber Expedition on Amazon Reaches Bolivia

Washington.—The government's rubber investigation expedition in South America, some members of which have returned, covered a large territory in the basins of the Amazon river and tributaries almost to the Bolivian borders in its search for sources for the development of crude rubber to meet the growing demands of American consumers.

Although an enormous area in that region is adapted to rubber production as far as temperature and rainfall are concerned, soil conditions are said to be a limiting factor.

Failing to Buy Candy Boy Tears Up $100 Bill

New Bedford, Mass.—Henry Beliski, six years old, took a $100 bill from a drawer at his home, Belleville avenue, thinking it a $1 bill. He told his mother that he thought it was being blown about somewhere on the avenue, as he had given it to a companion, John Hartley.

The boys tried to buy candy with the money at a store on Acushnet avenue. The proprietor of the store on seeing the bill's size refused to sell the boys anything and told them to take the money home. Henry said that John later in the day had torn the bill in two pieces and thrown it away. John is eleven years old.

ROAD BUILDING

HIGHWAYS CAN LIMIT USE OF AUTOMOBILES

(By ROY D. CHAPIN, Chairman Highways Committee, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.)

The average American is a restless individual. Never quite content with things as they are, he is always searching for some means to widen his range of activity and new methods of making both family and business life more worth while.

Hence it is not surprising that when the motor vehicle was first announced as a practical means of transportation, immediately he began to study its possibilities and finally to develop its use.

The story of how quickly it did it is one of the most amazing chapters in the whole story of the world's industrial progress. From 1895 to the close of 1923 the motor car manufacturers of America have been called upon to produce something more than 20,000,000 vehicles, of which it is conservative to say 13,500,000 are now in operation on American highways and owned and operated by Americans. Practically all of this production has been in the last eight years, and as we came to the close of 1923 we found that the output for the last year was the greatest in the history of the industry.

What, then, are the limiting factors which must be taken into consideration when we try to gauge the future use of the car?

Certainly, there is no reason to believe that there will be any decrease in the desire for personal, individual transportation. That characteristic is so deeply embedded in all of us that we may reasonably assert that the only limitations are ability to buy and ability to use.

Each of these themes is a text in itself, and since the purpose of this article is to deal with the second, we can dismiss the first with the reflection that in all of the period during which the American public has been buying motor cars in mass quantities savings deposits have continued to grow steadily, and everywhere there is abundant proof that the manufacture and use of the car have only broadened the productive and purchasing power of the public.

The second question provides us with a definite physical problem which can only be answered in terms of miles of highways.

It is pertinent, then, to examine our present road facilities and to see what is planned for the future. Preliminary estimates of the total rural highway mileage of the United States, as reported to the United States bureau of public roads, show that there were 2,841,294 miles of road of all types in the country on January 1, 1922. Of this there were some thousands of miles which were roads only in the legal sense that section lines had been so designated.

Perhaps the most valuable figures are those which show that at the end of 1923 there were about 430,000 miles of all types of surfaced highways, beginning with sand-clay and ending with the highest types of heavy-duty surface, which perhaps constitute 35,000 miles all told.

In other words, if we eliminate city streets there are thirty-one motor vehicles to every mile of improved highway in the United States, and when we consider that 55 per cent of all the cars of the country are used in communities of 5,000 or less, we can obtain some idea of the problem which is facing the road builders of the country if they are to keep pace with the production and use of the car.

Fortunately, there is plenty of evidence on all sides that the general public, the legislators and the builders who represent them all appreciate the need for more roads and all are joining in making them possible.

For example, there is the federal highway act, passed in 1916, and made an effective instrument for the organization of main state systems through the amendments of 1921.

Under its provisions each state has set up a highways department, and a two-year job of designating the 7 per cent of the total rural mileage which comprises the federal aid program in each state has been completed, so that we now have an actual visualization of the program ahead.

Improved Highway Will Reduce Delivery Cost

Lower cost of production and of marketing will be worked out by the man who uses modern scientific and practical methods, who mixes brains with his brawn, who knows where his products can be distributed to the best advantage and who is situated so he has the ability to make use of good highway transportation. On a good highway his cost of delivery is lessened and his profits therefore larger.

Dustless Pavement Types

The extent to which the dustless types of pavement are being adopted is shown by testimony given recently before the senate committee on post offices and post roads at Washington by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, whose tabulations showed that 107 federal aid projects completed and paid for to May 25 last year were roads built of bituminous materials. These highways were constructed in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas and California.

Baboons Fond of Jazz; Tigers Don't Like It

Los Angeles.—Playing a waltz puts a tiger to sleep; lions come nearest to laughing when they listen to a saxophone, and baboons are almost human in their weakness for jazz, psychologists and students from several California universities and colleges have deduced.

The scientists invaded a motion-picture zoo here with a noisy orchestra and carried on numerous experiments to obtain accurate data on the reaction certain types of music might be expected to produce in various kinds of animals.

While professors and students took notes the musicians ran the gamut of melody from lullabies to jazz tempes. Inside the cages the following results were observed:

Jazz numbers: Angered the tigers. The baboons danced to a tune built up on a once-prevalent scarcity of bananas; a brown bear went into a tremor when confronted with a moaning saxophone. An elephant ignored the orchestra ensemble, shied at the bass viol, trumpeted at the roll of a drum, but appeared immensely pleased with the trombone.

The mountain lions were not much interested. And Mary, the ape, smoked cigarettes through the whole two-hour performance.

University Latin Class Dines as Old Romans Did

Burlington, Vt.—Something unusual in the way of a dinner was recently given when 50 students in the three upper Latin classes at the University of Vermont gathered at a Roman feast as guests of Prof. M. B. Ogle, Miss Doris Perry and Prof. L. M. Prindle of the Latin department of the university.

The guests, according to Roman custom, brought their own napkins. In place of benches, upon which the Latins used to recline at meal time, the students lounged upon cushions on the floor. A course dinner was served to them upon plates and they used their fingers and spoons.

Prior to the dinner bowls of scented water and towels were passed.

At the conclusion of the second course a libation to Jupiter was drunk from a loving cup. Three Latin songs were sung by the students at the end of the dinner. Menu cards were written in Latin.

Gray Moss in Northwest Warning of Fire Danger

Washington.—The heavy gray moss which grows in the Douglas fir regions of the Northwest is being used by United States forest service experts to indicate the danger of an outbreak of forest fires.

The amount of moisture in this moss promptly changes with the slightest change in the amount of moisture in the air. By placing a quantity of the moss on a balance with a pen arm attached, changes in relative humidity are recorded satisfactorily.

By close observations in this way, the approach of such exceptional dryness and possible fire losses can be detected.

Bees Keep Tenants Out

Sacramento, Cal.—Entrance to the Y. M. C. A. building was blocked for more than an hour recently when a swarm of bees congregated on the swing over the doorway. ## TODAY WE CELEBRATE

THE GREAT SEAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Great Seal of the United States, without which no documents, treaties, diplomatic correspondence, etc., are ever issued, was adopted by Congress 142 years ago today.

The design was suggested by Sir John Prentiss, an eminent English antiquary, to John Adams, then United States minister to Great Britain, and was formally accepted by Congress on June 20, 1782.

It is composed of a spread-eagle, bearing on its breast an escutcheon with thirteen stripes, and in its talons holding an olive branch and thirteen arrows, symbolic of both peace and war.

Strange to say, the eagle, the suggestion of an Englishman, has since been the national bird of the United States.

BARBE DE VERUE.

Barbe de Verue was a French improvisatrice, and was the illegitimate daughter of obscure parents. The Count de Verue adopted her after he became famous and gave her his name. She was called a troubadour, resse, and travelled through towns and cities singing her own verses, and in this way she acquired a considerable fortune.

She sang the stories of Grisaldus, of William with the Falcon, of Anacassi, and a poem entitled the Gallic Orphans, which related to the civilization of the Gauls. She travelled and lived long, had many admirers of her talent. She lived in the 13th Century.

FIRST ATLANTIC S. S.

Paris Favors Kid Shoes for Spring And Summer Footwear

Hose to Match Shoes Is Trend of Fashion as Seen on the Best Dressed Women

Where the best dressed women gather this season, the change in hosiery styles is readily discernible. Instead of the startling array of colored hose of shades contrasting with the color of the shoe, there is seen a decided tendency to match the hose to the shoes in color. At least, though a lighter shade of the same color is sometimes chosen. This desirable turn of the mode is due to the vogue of kid shoes which demand harmony rather than contrast.

Four Kid Shoe Models That Are Making Their Debut on Avenue and Boulevard

Above—an evening shoe seen in bronze kid and the new shades of brown. The rhinestone slide and tassel is a modish accessory to the evening slipper.

In the oval—a pair of sandal shoes appropriate for afternoon wear are of champagne kid, piped in brown and worn with champagne colored hose.

Extreme left—a pair of light gray kid pumps piped with dark gray and trimmed with six small buttons are perfectly matched with gray hose and worn with a gray tweed suit.

Lower center—a two strap model in white kid with black trimmings and small buckles are smart for daytime wear and may be worn with heavy ribbed white silk stockings.

Summer Brings the White Kid Shoe

MATCHING THE KID SHOE TO THE DRESS

A particularly beautiful shoe of hazel kid with nut brown kid trim is presented to the fastidious woman for afternoon wear. Missy admires the simplicity of this shoe and enjoys the comfortable softness of the kid leather. The costume suit and the afternoon frock display to advantage the graceful and modish lines exploited by the kid shoe vogue.

As the days grow longer and the kid shoe is strikingly present, with sunshine warmer, white returns to its smart new cut, its variety of use in all its immaculate beauty, heels, and its variety of uses. Kid being the smartest material. The shoe pictured above has a nude-colored or the heavier ribbed for shoes this summer, the white heel that is highly satisfactory for walking.

EXPRESSING THE VOGUE OF KID SHOES

A new and extremely comfortable kid shoe with a capacity for conforming to the graceful lines of the foot and which can play a very versatile role, is chosen to be worn with the dinner or dancing gown. The pair above is of green kid with gold piping. A modish rhinestone slide with a dangling tassel is seen for evening.

Golf Criticism Causes Fist Fight

Arkansas Senator Resents Criticism of His Golfing by Hitting Dr. Mitchell in the Eye—Both Arkansas Senators Now Have Records.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, June 20.—If duelling had not been prohibited here many years ago, there probably would have been some shots exchanged at day-break this morning in that wooded dell near Bladensburg, which has witnessed the settlement of so many quarrels in days gone by.

The participants might have been Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas and Dr. James F. Mitchell, famous surgeon, but instead of duelling they settled their differences in their more modern, at the same time, more ancient way—with their fists.

Their paths crossed yesterday afternoon on the links of the Chevy Chase Golf Club. There were several versions today of what took place, but all witnesses agree that Senator Robinson hit Dr. Mitchell in the eye.

Robinson's golf mates—Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Senator Andrew Jones, of New Mexico, and Senator John B. Kendrick, of Wyoming—said that the Arkansas senator was provoked to hit Mitchell because of words which the latter used in criticizing the play of the senatorial foursome. Robinson complained, it is said, that Dr. Mitchell was very insolent.

Robinson is the second Arkansas senator to mix up in a fight during the past year, his colleague, Senator T. H. Caraway, having come to blows with a young man in a street car. The latter sued Caraway for damages, but the suit was not pressed.

Colonials Again Lose to Cubans

Havana Cuban Nine Easily Down Schrickmen—Chappie Johnson's All Stars Here Tonight.

The Havana Cubans gave the Colonials a drubbing Thursday evening, at the Fair Grounds, score 11 to 2. Oscar, the Cuban pitcher, played a very important part in giving the local team a beating. This Cuban right hander was pitching a no-hit game up until the eighth inning. Morgan, who was on the mound for the Schrickmen was hit very freely throughout the struggle.

McCue was the first to break into the hit column, cracking out one for the circuit. McLaughlin and Dewey also gathered in hits in the eighth. In the ninth the locals put over the second run. Hits by Raskin and McCue doing the work.

In the opening inning three runs were scored by the visitors, which seemed to take the heart out of Morgan. McCue pitched the last three innings. There was a number of shifts in the line-up of the Colonials during the struggle. Deegan played right field, second base and left field. Raskin, right field and first base and Coyle first and third base.

Johnson's All Stars Tonight. Chappie Johnson's colored All Stars of Schenectady will be the attraction at the Fair Grounds this evening. The Schrickmen have two wins over the colored team this season. Coutant or Perry will probably do the hurling.

Tagging All the Bases.

There was no change in the standing of three top teams in the National League, the Giants, Cubs and Dodgers turning in victories, defeating the Braves, Phillies and Reds, respectively. In the American League the Yankees, although idle, gained a little ground when the Tigers split even with the Indians. Yankees begin a "crucial" series with the Red Sox. The latter team is two games back of the leading Yankees.
